Governor Says Emotions Halt Any Agreement

Cites Need For Negro Leadership

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes said Friday night "leadership of the integration movement in Cambridge is fragmented," hindering negotiations for an end to racial strife.

At the same time, he said, "To some extent the people of Cambridge have reacted to this crisis in commendable fashion. The demands for equality that were presented to the city officials have been met to a very large degree.

"Both sides are closer to agreement than their emotions allow them to admit. Only in a calm atmosphere can settlement be achieved."

Tawes twice has ordered the National Guard into Cambridge, most recently on July 12 after guerrilla warfare broke out. Some 400 troops are still posted there.

Gov. Tawes asked integration leaders in Cambridge to have negotiators who can truly negotiate "meet with the newly appointed Cambridge Human Relations Committee to work out an amicable settlement."

Speaking less than five hours after integrationists from Cambridge had picketed the Statehouse, the governor expressed his views in a speech prepared for delivery on eight television and some 30 radio stations.

Leadership Problem

"One never really knows," Tawes said, "which individual is speaking for the Negro community at any one given time," and whether the leaders "are, in truth, leading, or being swept along in a wave of emotionalism."

The governor asked that the negotiators be individuals "who have the authority to arrange agreements that are not placed in jeopardy at emotionally charged meetings and rallies wherein a man's leadership capabilities are determined by his ability to shout the loudest."

"There is no solution — no lasting solution — to the problem of race discrimination to be found in the streets," he said.

"Unless all the citizens of this state begin to appreciate the magnitude of the social revolution now under way, we will face not weeks nor months of racial strife, but years."

Reviewing Cambridge developments of the past months, Tawes termed his withdrawal of the Guard from Cambridge July 8 unwise, and said it also was unfortunate that "14 demonstrators taken into custody by the National Guard on Tuesday were released."

"In a situation such as we have," he said, "crisis mounts upon crisis, in almost hourly succession. Under such conditions, mistakes will be made."

More Help Indicated

The governor said he was initiating immediate steps to provide more investigators and clerical help for Maryland's interracial commission, to remind state agency chiefs that discrimination in employment will not be tolerated, and to enforce the law prohibiting the state from doing business with firms which practice discrimination.

He also said the interracial commission has been asked to work with a federation of civil rights leaders to establish educational workshops for benefit of governmental leaders, law enforcement officers, clergymen, business and union leaders and others.

Tawes mentioned steps taken to integrate four remaining public school grades in Dorchester County, appointment of the human relations committee including four Negroes, passage of a city charter amendment for equal public accommondations, and the fact a qualified Negro will be employed at the Department of Employment Security office in Cambridge.

Sees Sincere Effort

"This action indicates to me that the reasonable and responsible people of Cambridge are sincere in their desire to bring about a just settlement of this crisis."

The Negroes had rejected the package as unsatisfactory.

The governor said: "One Cambridge commissioner likened negotiations with integration leaders to an attempt to bring two pieces of rope together. 'Every time we

Bar Committee Is Reluctantly Ready To Act

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — A special committee of the Maryland State Bar Association agreed reluctantly Friday to try to help settle the Cambridge Racial dispute.

The committee said it was not formed to intervene in a situation that has gone as far as Cambridge, but to try to prevent similar incidents elsewhere in Maryland. It agreed, however, to tackle the job "if the governor and responsible Cambridge leaders, on both sides, ask us to sit down and discuss the situation with them."

The committee also said it will have to determine the time, place and circumstances for such meetings if they are to be of any value. There were no indications these would come before next week.

The panel of prominent lawyers is headed by William J. McWilliams of Annapolis, a former circuit judge, and includes two members who have headed interracial committees which paved the way for voluntary desegregation of public places in Salisbury and Easton on the Eastern Shore.

The bar association group made plain, in a statement issued by McWilliams, that it did not like the way its services had been suggested by state Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan without prior consultation with the committee.

McWilliams said the committee's next scheduled meeting is next Wednesday in Baltimore.

He said the committee did not have formal requests as such to act in the Cambridge matter.

He was called on Thursday by two aides of Gov. Tawes after Finan's statement had appeared in print, and Tawes wrote to Eney asking that the committee intervene. McWilliams said, however, that the committee does not consider this a formal request to act.

Stanley Branche, field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said he sent one telegram. The other was sent by the Human Relations Commission, in the name of the mayor and City Council.

Other members of the committee are John Webb of Salisbury, William H. Adkins II of Easton, William Sommerville, Norman Ramsey, John Hargrove and F. Desales Mudd.

Outlines Racial Issues

Gov. J. Millard Tawes gestures as his plea for an end to racial antagonisms was taped for radio-TV. Police Arrest 44 Brooklyn Demonstrators

NEW YORK (AP)—Police arrested 44 more civil rights demonstrators — 17 children among them — for blocking the entrance to a state hospital construction site in Brooklyn Friday and refusing to move.

It was the second mass arrest there this week.

The white and Negro pickets carried signs protesting discrimination by building trades unions and demanding more jobs for Negroes and Puerto Ricans.

Across town in Manhattan, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller told a news conference — held in a hotel because of a sit-in demonstration in his press room—that New York law well establishes the principle of equal opportunity.

When asked about the demands of some civil rights groups that a set percentage of construction jobs be assigned to nonwhites, Rockefeller said the "quota concept" was both impossible and against the law.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner, meanwhile, held a closed-door conference at City Hall with leaders of several major civil rights groups, a meeting described as "a good first step" in providing more jobs. Outside Wagner's office, a 10-day-old sit-in demonstration was in progress.

Chilean Commies Supporting Moscow

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)— The Communist party of Chile, proportionately the most powerful in South America, has come out in support of Moscow in the ideological dispute with Peking.

"The latest Chinese documents (the 25 points denouncing Moscow's peaceful coexistence line) go much beyond the tolerable limits of a fraternal discussion," the Communist organ Siglo said.

The Chinese position paper was widely distributed here in Spanish pamphlets by the Communist New China news agency. Since the distribution, two weeks ago, the New China logotype has disappeared from the sophisticated party daily.

Negro Leaders Disregard Plea Of Gov. Tawes

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — Negro leaders announced Friday night that an integration demonstration will be held in this racially troubled town at 7 p.m. Saturday, unless a blue-ribbon committee of lawyers arrives before that time to begin mediation talks.

The statement was announced to a cheering crowd of about 100 persons within 30 minutes after Gov. Tawes made a statewide television-radio address urging a peaceful settlement of the problem.

Tawes has twice ordered National Guard troops into Cambridge. Integration leaders called off demonstrations after Maryland Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan said a racial relations committee of the Maryland Bar Association would be asked to mediate the dispute.

The committee agreed to intervene if asked by the governor and Cambridge leaders on both sides, but there were indications nothing would be done until next week.

"We are ready to demonstrate tomorrow if that committee is not sent in here tomorrow, regardless of what the governor says," Mrs. Gloria Richardson, chairman of the Cambridge Non-Violent Committee said.

"The only thing he (the governor) has done is make excuses," Mrs. Richardson said from the tailgate of a truck. "Tomorrow night I want the church packed, and I want you ready to march. We are not willing to wait for eventualities. We want our rights now."

Stanley Branche, field secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told the crowd, "Tomorrow, I don't want you to come down here with your neckties on and your best pants. You know what we're going to do tomorrow night. We're going to march together, and if need be, we'll go to jail together. We're not afraid, but remember this march is going to be non-violent.

Another Cut Is Voted In Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted Friday to cut another $240 million off President Kennedy's $4,525,325,000 foreign aid bill.

The cut, together with a $32-million slash voted Thursday, brought reductions so far to $272 million with others possible when the committee meets again Monday to continue work on the measure.

In a surprise action, the committee adopted an amendment by Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., making research funds in the bill available to countries for work on birth control measures in overpopulated countries.

The amendment, approved by voice vote will make funds available "to conduct research into problems of controlling population growth and to provide technical and other assistance to cooperating countries in carrying out programs of population control."

Quakes Rumble Along Riviera

GENOA, Italy (UPI)—A series of rumbling earthquakes Friday drove thousands of panic-stricken tourists and residents into the streets along the 300-mile Italian and French Riviera playground. The tremors may have tilted the famed Leaning Tower of Pisa even more.

Buildings rocked, lamps swayed and clocks jolted to a stop with the first shock—exactly at 6:50 a.m.

Hundreds of persons fainted, but there were no reports of any serious injuries.

The quake zone extended as far inland as Turin and Milan to the north and westward to Marseille and Cannes in France and even hit the island of Corsica. Tremors were felt as far away as Perpignan, France, near the Spanish border in the foothills of the Pyrenees Mountains.

Situation Is Uneasy In Syria

Twenty Rebels Executed By Firing Squads

By WEBB MCKINLEY

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Syria's Ba'athist Socialist regime ordered firing squads into action Friday in a swift sequel to Thursday's abortive revolt. Broadcast communiques announced the execution at intervals of 20 rebels—military and civilian.

Trouble remained evident.

Diplomatic advices reaching Beirut said heavy small arms fire broke out about 11 a.m. near the Syrian Defense Ministry and sporadic shooting was heard in other parts of Damascus until about 12:30 p.m.

A new curfew was clamped on all Syria—an Arab nation about the size of North Dakota—and Syrians were warned to stay indoors on penalty of being shot. Demonstrations and carrying arms were banned. International telephone service, restored briefly, was cut again. Syria's borders remained closed.

A hard line was taken by Maj. Amin Hafez, the tall, 52-year-old strong man who is deputy to Premier Salah Bitar and also holds the posts of defense minister, army chief of staff and deputy military governor.

It was obvious that the Ba'athists, who won power through a revolution March 8, were determined to hold it against attacks from either dissident military forces or backers of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic. The lineup suggested both were involved in the latest uprising.

Fact-Finders Send Railroad Report To JFK

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy received the report of his railroad fact-finders Friday and the lengthy work rules dispute once again approached a "what-happens-now" countdown

In a shift of plans, the White House decided to make the 15-page report public Saturday. However, that document is described as offering no solution, but only a summary of issues on which the carriers and their five on-train unions have remained widely split for four years.

Kennedy will reveal his proposal for preventing or halting a crippling strike in submitting recommendations to Congress on Monday, along with the fact-finders' report.

The President is taking the report with him to Hyannis Port, Mass., where he is expected to study it and come to a decision over the weekend.

The six-man panel of representatives of management, labor and government — headed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz—called on Kennedy to give him the fruits of their efforts of the past week. Both sides in the dispute reportedly regard the report as accurate.

Pierre Salinger, presidential press secretary, told reporters the report will be released Saturday at Hyannis Port and Washington. Earlier, the announced plan was to make it public Monday along with Kennedy's message to Congress.

Soviet Premier Gives New Life To Pact Hopes

Offers Several New Proposals For Nonaggression, Arms Cut

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev leaped into the East-West negotiations here Friday with a proposal to back up a nuclear test ban with a nonagression pact and a system of airfield and railroad inspections to prevent surprise attack.

While the negotiators meeting in a nearby palace sorted out details of a partial test ban, the Soviet leader walked to the podium in the Kremlin and made a series of proposals that seemed to head straight for a summit conference.

He agreed the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union are approaching agreement on a nuclear test ban covering everything except underground explosions. He wants those too, he said, but added that the West insists on inspections. He implied those will not be approved.

Wants Peace Pact

With the test ban he wanted a nonaggression pact, just as he said July 2 in Berlin, but he clearly opened a new way to negotiations on that.

"We think that the question of the form of the nonaggression pact can be solved without any great difficulties to the mutual satisfaction of both sides. Most important thing is not the form, but the content," he said.

"The most important thing is for each side to display willingness to ease tensions and to liquidate the state of the cold war."

The proposals immediately were studied anew by the British and American delegations here even though there was some indication that he had outlined them in their first talk last Monday, when he opened the negotiations in the Kremlin.

Khrushchev spoke at a meeting of 6,000 in honor of Hungary's visiting premier and Communist party leader, Janos Kadar.

Audience Cheers

The audience cheered repeatedly as he made them. They cheered again when he lashed out at the Chinese Communists, accusing them of wanting to carry forward their revolutionary fervor at the risk of a nuclear war.

He scoffed at them for doubting his old thesis that the Socialist system will beat capitalism with production, not guns.

Khrushchev made clear in his 90-minute speech that he wanted a nonaggression pact or something mighty like it to come out of the present negotiations. Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman, chairman of the U.S. delegation, has repeatedly said he is here to negotiate a test ban,

New Altitude Record Set By Civilian Pilot

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—X15 pilot Joe Walker shot into the "black velvet" of space Friday to set a new world aircraft altitude record of almost 67 miles, and returned to earth describing the flight nonchalantly as "all in a day's work."

The 41-year-old veteran flyer, America's top civilian pilot and also holder of the aircraft speed mark of 4,104 miles an hour, actually overshot his scheduled goal of 60 miles. The old mark was 59.6 miles set in the X15 last year by Air Force Maj. Bob White.

Preliminary data fixed the altitude Friday at 350,000 feet, at a speed of 3,886 miles an hour—5.2 times the speed of sound, with the flight lasting 11 minutes.

"It's the smoothest flight I ever had," said Walker, who made his 24th trip in the revolutionary rocket ship.

Khrushchev Again Blasts Red Chinese

Dares Peking To Take Dispute Before The People

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP)—Sputtering with rage over Red China's challenge to his leadership of the Communist camp, Soviet Premier Khrushchev dared Peking's leaders Friday to take their ideological dispute to the people.

"I declare to those who would like to overthrow us: I challenge you, gentlemen, comrades, let's pick out any plant or any collective farm," he said.

"You present your program and we will present our program. Let the people be the judge."

"And you may rest assured, you won't need armor or a pillow for protection. Our people are polite here. They'll listen to you and say: "Get out'."

At Loss For Words

At one point he sputtered to a halt searching for a word and appealed to the Kremlin audience: "Help me out, help me out."

While Khrushchev was throwing down the gauntlet to Mao Tzetung at the Kremlin, their ideological experts were meeting in the Lenin Hills to discuss the arguments which the premier's speech showed are nowhere near a compromise.

"They say one should start a revolution, a war, and on the corpses and ruins a still more prosperous society will be created," he said.

"And who will remain in this prosperous society?" he asked sarcastically.

"And do you know that if all the warheads of the nuclear rockets were set off and if all this were to go into the contamination of the atmosphere, then it is not known what would be the fate of the people who would survive.

"Wouldn't possibly the living envy the dead?"

Gwynn Oak Park Owners Agree To End Segregation

BULLETIN

BALTIMORE (AP)—The owners of Gwynn Oak Amusement Park agreed Friday night to end segregation at the park beginning Aug. 28, Baltimore County Executive Spiro T. Agnew announced.

Agnew announced the verbal agreement as integrationists made plans to renew mass demonstrations at the park tonight.

About 380 persons, including prominent clergymen, were arrested during protest demonstrations at the park July 4 and 7, before a truce was declared while the Baltimore County Human Relations Committee attempted to mediate the dispute.

After an eight-hour meeting ended early Friday without agreement, the Ad Hoc Committee for Desegregation of Gwynn Oak Park announced plans to resume demonstrations.

"Both parties agreed to proceed with integration of the park, effective Aug. 28," Agnew said as a news conference got under way after 11 p.m.

Nature Will Stage Solar Eclipse Today

By United Press International

Nature stages one of the world's oldest space spectaculars Saturday afternoon, a solar eclipse which for one brief moment will turn day into night from Japan to the North Atlantic.

As it has from time immemorial, the phenomenon will fascinate mankind.

Hundreds of scientists will gather on mountaintops, others will view the eclipse from a jet airliner 35,000 feet above earth and, for the first time, millions will be able to witness the event by simply turning on their television sets.

At 4:35 p.m. EDT, the 60-mile wide belt of the total eclipse will move across Central Maine, Canada and Alaska, as the moon begins passing in front of the sun.

Total Eclipse

The eclipse will become total at Bar Harbor, Maine, at 5:42 p.m. EDT. The whole show will be over by 6:45 p.m. EDT.

While it lasts, astronomers and the countless non - professionals will see stars glowing in the afternoon, the sun radiating from behind the moon "Bailey's Beads" —flashes of sunlight which shine through the valleys and mountain peaks of the moon.

All three major U.S. television networks will cover the eclipse, either "live" or by videotape.

At Fort Churchill, Manitoba, on the shores of Hudson Bay, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) will fire six Nike-Apache rockets during the eclipse to measure the effects of changing solar radiation intensity in the ionosphere.

Ejectable doors triggered at 150,000 feet will expose sensory instruments, which will measure selected wave lengths of the solar spectrum as the sun's disk is obscured and then cleared.

Data collected will be relayed to a ground station headed by Dr. Leslie G. Smith, of the Geophysics Corp. of America, Bedford, Mass.

Astronaut In Jet

Scientists in the jetliner, including Astronaut M. Scott Carpenter, will be able to view the total eclipse for longer than the 59 seconds it will be visible from any one fixed point on the earth.

Streaking at more than 500 miles an hour, Carpenter will attempt to photograph zociacal light, a faint flow between the sun and its planets.

Earthbound observers not catching the eclipse on television were cautioned not to look at it with the naked eye, even though the sun is partially obscured.

Surgeon Gen. Dr. Luther Terry said that even one second's exposure to the full rays of the sun could cause permanent eye damage. "Watch it on television," he suggested.

Viewers were warned not to look at the eclipse through binoculars, or the eyepieces of telescopes. Sun glasses or other film shades should not be used, Dr. Terry warned.

"It cannot be stated too strongly that there is no safe way to look directly at the sun at any time," he declared.

Trouble remained evident.

Diplomatic advices reaching Beirut said heavy small arms fire broke out about 11 a.m. near the Syrian Defense Ministry and sporadic shooting was heard in other parts of Damascus until about 12:30 p.m.

A new curfew was clamped on all Syria—an Arab nation about the size of North Dakota—and Syrians were warned to stay indoors on penalty of being shot. Demonstrations and carrying arms were banned. International telephone service, restored briefly, was cut again. Syria's borders remained closed.

A hard line was taken by Maj. Amin Hafez, the tall, 52-year-old strong man who is deputy to Premier Salah Bitar and also holds the posts of defense minister, army chief of staff and deputy military governor.

It was obvious that the Ba'athists, who won power through a revolution March 8, were determined to hold it against attacks from either dissident military forces or backers of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic. The lineup suggested both were involved in the latest uprising.

Fact-Finders Send Railroad Report To JFK

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy received the report of his railroad fact-finders Friday and the lengthy work rules dispute once again approached a "what-happens-now" countdown

In a shift of plans, the White House decided to make the 15-page report public Saturday. However, that document is described as offering no solution, but only a summary of issues on which the carriers and their five on-train unions have remained widely split for four years.

Kennedy will reveal his proposal for preventing or halting a crippling strike in submitting recommendations to Congress on Monday, along with the fact-finders' report.

The President is taking the report with him to Hyannis Port, Mass., where he is expected to study it and come to a decision over the weekend.

The six-man panel of representatives of management, labor and government — headed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz—called on Kennedy to give him the fruits of their efforts of the past week. Both sides in the dispute reportedly regard the report as accurate.

Pierre Salinger, presidential press secretary, told reporters the report will be released Saturday at Hyannis Port and Washington. Earlier, the announced plan was to make it public Monday along with Kennedy's message to Congress.

Soviet Premier Gives New Life To Pact Hopes

Offers Several New Proposals For Nonaggression, Arms Cut

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev leaped into the East-West negotiations here Friday with a proposal to back up a nuclear test ban with a nonagression pact and a system of airfield and railroad inspections to prevent surprise attack.

While the negotiators meeting in a nearby palace sorted out details of a partial test ban, the Soviet leader walked to the podium in the Kremlin and made a series of proposals that seemed to head straight for a summit conference.

He agreed the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union are approaching agreement on a nuclear test ban covering everything except underground explosions. He wants those too, he said, but added that the West insists on inspections. He implied those will not be approved.

Wants Peace Pact

With the test ban he wanted a nonaggression pact, just as he said July 2 in Berlin, but he clearly opened a new way to negotiations on that.

"We think that the question of the form of the nonaggression pact can be solved without any great difficulties to the mutual satisfaction of both sides. Most important thing is not the form, but the content," he said.

"The most important thing is for each side to display willingness to ease tensions and to liquidate the state of the cold war."

The proposals immediately were studied anew by the British and American delegations here even though there was some indication that he had outlined them in their first talk last Monday, when he opened the negotiations in the Kremlin.

Khrushchev spoke at a meeting of 6,000 in honor of Hungary's visiting premier and Communist party leader, Janos Kadar.

Audience Cheers

The audience cheered repeatedly as he made them. They cheered again when he lashed out at the Chinese Communists, accusing them of wanting to carry forward their revolutionary fervor at the risk of a nuclear war.

He scoffed at them for doubting his old thesis that the Socialist system will beat capitalism with production, not guns.

Khrushchev made clear in his 90-minute speech that he wanted a nonaggression pact or something mighty like it to come out of the present negotiations. Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman, chairman of the U.S. delegation, has repeatedly said he is here to negotiate a test ban,

Khrushchev Again Blasts Red Chinese

Dares Peking To Take Dispute Before The People

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP)—Sputtering with rage over Red China's challenge to his leadership of the Communist camp, Soviet Premier Khrushchev dared Peking's leaders Friday to take their ideological dispute to the people.

"I declare to those who would like to overthrow us: I challenge you, gentlemen, comrades, let's pick out any plant or any collective farm," he said.

"You present your program and we will present our program. Let the people be the judge."

"And you may rest assured, you won't need armor or a pillow for protection. Our people are polite here. They'll listen to you and say: "Get out'."

At Loss For Words

At one point he sputtered to a halt searching for a word and appealed to the Kremlin audience: "Help me out, help me out."

While Khrushchev was throwing down the gauntlet to Mao Tzetung at the Kremlin, their ideological experts were meeting in the Lenin Hills to discuss the arguments which the premier's speech showed are nowhere near a compromise.

"They say one should start a revolution, a war, and on the corpses and ruins a still more prosperous society will be created," he said.

"And who will remain in this prosperous society?" he asked sarcastically.

"And do you know that if all the warheads of the nuclear rockets were set off and if all this were to go into the contamination of the atmosphere, then it is not known what would be the fate of the people who would survive.

"Wouldn't possibly the living envy the dead?"

New Altitude Record Set By Civilian Pilot

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—X15 pilot Joe Walker shot into the "black velvet" of space Friday to set a new world aircraft altitude record of almost 67 miles, and returned to earth describing the flight nonchalantly as "all in a day's work."

The 41-year-old veteran flyer, America's top civilian pilot and also holder of the aircraft speed mark of 4,104 miles an hour, actually overshot his scheduled goal of 60 miles. The old mark was 59.6 miles set in the X15 last year by Air Force Maj. Bob White.

Preliminary data fixed the altitude Friday at 350,000 feet, at a speed of 3,886 miles an hour—5.2 times the speed of sound, with the flight lasting 11 minutes.

"It's the smoothest flight I ever had," said Walker, who made his 24th trip in the revolutionary rocket ship.

Gwynn Oak Park Owners Agree To End Segregation

BULLETIN

BALTIMORE (AP)—The owners of Gwynn Oak Amusement Park agreed Friday night to end segregation at the park beginning Aug. 28, Baltimore County Executive Spiro T. Agnew announced.

Agnew announced the verbal agreement as integrationists made plans to renew mass demonstrations at the park tonight.

About 380 persons, including prominent clergymen, were arrested during protest demonstrations at the park July 4 and 7, before a truce was declared while the Baltimore County Human Relations Committee attempted to mediate the dispute.

After an eight-hour meeting ended early Friday without agreement, the Ad Hoc Committee for Desegregation of Gwynn Oak Park announced plans to resume demonstrations.

"Both parties agreed to proceed with integration of the park, effective Aug. 28," Agnew said as a news conference got under way after 11 p.m.

Nature Will Stage Solar Eclipse Today

By United Press International

Nature stages one of the world's oldest space spectaculars Saturday afternoon, a solar eclipse which for one brief moment will turn day into night from Japan to the North Atlantic.

As it has from time immemorial, the phenomenon will fascinate mankind.

Hundreds of scientists will gather on mountaintops, others will view the eclipse from a jet airliner 35,000 feet above earth and, for the first time, millions will be able to witness the event by simply turning on their television sets.

At 4:35 p.m. EDT, the 60-mile wide belt of the total eclipse will move across Central Maine, Canada and Alaska, as the moon begins passing in front of the sun.

Total Eclipse

The eclipse will become total at Bar Harbor, Maine, at 5:42 p.m. EDT. The whole show will be over by 6:45 p.m. EDT.

While it lasts, astronomers and the countless non - professionals will see stars glowing in the afternoon, the sun radiating from behind the moon "Bailey's Beads" —flashes of sunlight which shine through the valleys and mountain peaks of the moon.

All three major U.S. television networks will cover the eclipse, either "live" or by videotape.

At Fort Churchill, Manitoba, on the shores of Hudson Bay, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) will fire six Nike-Apache rockets during the eclipse to measure the effects of changing solar radiation intensity in the ionosphere.

Ejectable doors triggered at 150,000 feet will expose sensory instruments, which will measure selected wave lengths of the solar spectrum as the sun's disk is obscured and then cleared.

Data collected will be relayed to a ground station headed by Dr. Leslie G. Smith, of the Geophysics Corp. of America, Bedford, Mass.

Astronaut In Jet

Scientists in the jetliner, including Astronaut M. Scott Carpenter, will be able to view the total eclipse for longer than the 59 seconds it will be visible from any one fixed point on the earth.

Streaking at more than 500 miles an hour, Carpenter will attempt to photograph zociacal light, a faint flow between the sun and its planets.

Earthbound observers not catching the eclipse on television were cautioned not to look at it with the naked eye, even though the sun is partially obscured.

Surgeon Gen. Dr. Luther Terry said that even one second's exposure to the full rays of the sun could cause permanent eye damage. "Watch it on television," he suggested.

Viewers were warned not to look at the eclipse through binoculars, or the eyepieces of telescopes. Sun glasses or other film shades should not be used, Dr. Terry warned.

"It cannot be stated too strongly that there is no safe way to look directly at the sun at any time," he declared.

Buddhist Priests Turn Down Plea Of President Diem

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON Viet Nam (AP) — Blockaded in their pagodas, Buddhist leaders Friday turned down a broadcast plea by President Ngo Dinh Diem to call off their struggle against his government.

They charged subordinate government officials were sabotaging the president's conciliation efforts and said in a statement that "we would prefer to die rather than let our belief in government good faith be destroyed by reality once more."

The yellow-robed high priests said they would negotiate only if Diem met certain conditions: These included the public identification of secret police who have been attacking Buddhist demonstrations, release of several hundred prisoners and permission for Saigon newspapers to print missing notices to try to track down Buddhists who have disappeared.

The priests vowed to continue demonstrations until these demands were met. The city was under heavy police guard.

The demonstrations, which have provoked street clashes, protest against what the Buddhists say is religious discrimination by the Diem government, whose leaders are Roman Catholic.

Diem had urged the Buddhist leaders to "take note of the government's utmost desire for conciliation." He yielded to one demand that all Buddhist sects have equal rights to fly religious flags.

The Buddhist leaders replied that Diem had made previous conciliatory gestures but there had been "so many unfortunate incidents happening to our Buddhist religion" that they no longer trust his officials.

While the exchange went on, at least three pagodas were under police blockage. These were lofted for half an hour, but replaced when Buddhists—fearing arrest—refused to leave.

Religious officials reported that nearly 400 monks, nuns and other refugees huddled in the tiny Giac Minh pagoda since Wednesday are rapidly running out of food.

Police Probe Harrowing Tale Of Kidnap, Rape

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — Police Friday investigated the harrowing story of a 28-year-old mother of four who said she was held captive in a mountain cabin for four days by a kidnapper who tied her to a bed.

Mrs. Sylvia May Wilson, estranged from her husband, Robert, was discovered by motorists on U.S. 101 near Decker Road at the southern tip of the Ventura-Los Angeles County line in the San Fernando Valley. Her hands were bound with tape, and she appeared suffering from hysteria.

Mrs. Wilson said she was raped once by the tall, silent kidnapper who abducted her from a parking lot in Reseda, Calif., last Monday.

She accompanied two West Valley detectives, Sgt. O. D. DeWyk and Lynn Selby, to the Decker Canyon area where she was released Thursday. In that way, officers hoped to locate the cabin she described.

DeWyk said the stories she gave Ventura deputies and police were essentially the same recapitulation of kidnap and attack.

Mrs. Wilson said after being knocked unconscious in the parking lot Monday, she was blindfolded, gagged and bound.

Once inside the cabin, she said, the kidnapper tied her spread-eagle to a bed. She said he raped her the next day.

Mrs. Wilson said she was given water only twice and a few rolls to eat during the four-day period.

She described her assailant as about 6 feet, 3 inches, and 240 pounds. She said he was about 40 and had bloodshot eyes.

She told of "long, very cold nights while I lay nude tied to the bed."

Israeli Jets Force 4 U.S. Planes To Land

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI)—Israeli jet fighters Friday forced four U.S. Department of Commerce planes to land at Lydda Airport after they violated Israel's air space, an army spokesman announced.

The spokesman said the planes were released shortly afterwards and that three of them took off for their destination. He said one plane had mechanical trouble and was expected to stay at the airport near here until at least Sunday.

The spokesman said he did not know the point of origin or the destination of the planes.

State Department Press Officer Richard Phillips said in Washington that the planes he described as weather reconnaissance aircraft took off from Daharan. He said they were released after the Israelis had "ascertained the nature" of the flights.

Phillips said the U.S. had filed a flight plan which involved crossing Israel but through an error or misunderstanding had not actually obtained clearance from Israeli authorities.

JFK Attends Christening Of Nephew

HYANNIS, Mass. (UPI) — Knee-deep in nieces and nephews, President Kennedy watched proudly Friday as Richard Cardinal Cushing, the archbishop of Boston, christened the new son of Attorney General and Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy.

The President and his brother flew to Cape Cod from Washington in the late afternoon, then joined forces with a multitude of relatives at St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic Church here for the christening of Christopher George Kennedy, the eighth child of the Robert Kennedys. Christopher George was born July 4.

From 14 to 20 children, including the President's daughter, Caroline, surrounded the baptismal font during the ceremony. They swirled at times through the legs of Secret Service agents, assorted relatives and friends and the God-parents — Mrs. Peter Lawford, who held the baby during the christening, and Dean Markham, an old family friend and executive secretary of the President's Committee on Narcotics and Drug Abuse.

After the christening, the President left the church for the Hyannisport Country Club to play golf. His wife, Jacqueline, expecting their third child next month, accompanied him on the course in an electric golf cart.

Civil Action Seen In Grain Diversion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some U.S. firms may face civil suits in the diversion in Europe of $50 million in government-bartered grain, even though there is no evidence of wrongdoing by the Americans, Congress was told Friday.

Several members of the House Agriculture Committee, hearing this testimony from Agriculture Department officials, expressed doubt that the government could sustain such a suit against an American exporter who acted in good faith.

The committee questioned the officials about some 605,000 metric tons of feed grains which never reached Austria under barter arrangement.

Foreign agricultural service administrator Raymond A. Ioanes and inspector general Lester P. Condon testified that a still incomplete investigation so far shows:

1. There is no indication any of the grain found its way behind the Iron Curtain.

2. Most of the diverted tonnage stayed in West Germany, where it had been unloaded for transshipment to landlocked Austria. Grain prices are substantially higher in Germany than in Austria. Some Austrian importers acted as fronts for West German interests who were the actual purchasers of the grain.

3. There is no evidence of collusion or wrongdoing by U.S. firms or nationals.

4. The U.S. government did not suffer any out-of-pocket loss but its balance-of-payments problem may have been aggravated to the extent the diversion lessened opportunities to sell grain for dollars in Germany.

5. The strategic materials due the government in the barter transactions have been, or are being, delivered.

Ioanes also said all barter transactions for grain to Austria have been cut off pending completion of the investigation.

Prisoner Escapes In Pink Panties

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — A six-foot woman prisoner clad only in pink panties slugged a jailer with two bars of soap Friday and escaped with her boyfriend from a county jail here, police said.

The escapees were identified as Mrs. Millie Jones, 37, and William D. Splawn, 40, both of Eastland, Tex. They had been held on federal charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for a robbery at Eastland.

Mrs. Jones, who stands nearly six feet tall, asked jailer Lloyd Stewart early this morning if she could take a shower.

When Stewart opened the cell door to admit her to the shower room, she struck him four times on the head with two bars of soap stuffed in a shirt sleeve. It took four stitches to close a gash on Stewart's head.

The woman then grabbed the jailer's keys and freed Splawn.

Picketing Maryland's Capitol

These are among some 50 integrationists who traveled 60 miles from Cambridge to Annapolis yesterday to picket the Maryland Statehouse. get close,' he said, 'they move their end.' "

A few hours earlier, Cambridge integrationists carrying hand-lettered placards picketed the Statehouse for an hour to protest the detention of two Negro juveniles in training schools.

As the pickets marched without incident, the governor was in Baltimore preparing his speech on Cambridge.

In his talk, he said "I would not be justified in using the powers of my office, even if I could, to subvert a decision by the highest court of our state" and order the juveniles freed.

The Maryland Court of Appeals refused to release them until it can hear the arguments on merits of the case next fall.

Pickets At Statehouse

Some 50 demonstrators from Cambridge, almost all of them Negroes, paraded in a circle on the brick walk of the Statehouse in hot, humid weather, singing "We Shall Overcome" and other integration songs.

Negro leaders of the integration drive in Cambridge contend that two 15-year-old Negro juveniles were sent to training schools because they took part in racial demonstrations in Cambridge. The state has said the youngsters—unnamed because of their age—were committed for general delinquency.

All doors to the Statehouse were locked and guarded before the integrationists arrived in a bus and several cars. The regular guard force of the capitol was stationed outside and state troopers stood inside at the elevators and the governor's office.

This apparently was to make certain there was no repeat of a sit-in in the governor's office like the one integrationists staged July 1-3.

A few curious spectators watched the softly singing pickets outside but newsmen, photographers and policemen made up most of those there. After an hour, the demonstrators returned to Cambridge.

Finan Asks Mediation

In Cambridge, where demonstations were suspended Thursday, all was quiet. Further demonstrations in the racially scarred city of 12,000 were called off after Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan said he had asked a Racial Relations Committee of the Maryland Bar Association to mediate the dispute.

The committee chairman, William J. McWilliams of Annapolis, said Friday that "if the governor and the responsible Cambridge leaders, on both sides, ask us to sit down to discuss the situation with them, we are willing to do so."

McWilliams, a former circuit judge, said this had not been the purpose of the committee named July 12, that its main function would be to help leaders of other communities "in devising ways of avoiding or preventing a repetition of the Cambridge incident."

"It was felt there was very little, if anything, the committee could do about the Cambridge situation."

Gov. Tawes sent National Guard troops into Cambridge for the second time July 12 after a night of violence in which six white persons were wounded.

Average House Value Reported

WASHINGTON (AP)—The average value of houses in Montgomery County, Md., is highest in the Washington area, according to a Census Bureau report.

The average value of houses in the county was $23,400 at the time the bureau made its study in 1961.

Maryland Briefs

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland Council of Churches, announcing its support of nonviolent demonstrations for racial equality, says Christians cannot "accept any compromise with discrimination or segregation of people on the basis of race."

In a statement, the organization urged its 2,000 member churches to support legislation, negotiations and demonstrations for equal rights for Negroes.

The council was among the sponsors of a July 4 massive demonstration at segregated, privately owned Gwynn Oak Amusement Park in suburban Baltimore. The Rev. Donzel C. Wildey, council executive secretary, was among those arrested at the park.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A request for a temporary injunction to bar the state from condemning land on Assateague Island will be heard July 26 in U.S. District Court.

Seeking the injunction, as Assateague property owners, are Harry Libshutz of Baltimore, Robert R. Rodenberg of Washington, D.C., and Disc Inc., a Washington development firm.

They contend the state is taking land without a clear plan for developing the Worcester County island and still could accept a federal proposal which would make the condemnation unnecessary.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Employers will pay the same unemployment insurance tax and adjustment rate during fiscal 1964 as they are paying now.

The Department of Employment Security announced Friday that the adjustment rate of 1.3 per cent which is added to employers' basic tax would not be changed. The basic rate is 1.6 to 4.2 per cent on payrolls.

The basic rate is figured on a three-year basis which takes into account the size of each employer's payroll and the number of benefits charged against his account. The trust fund totaled more than $103 million on June 30 of this year.

BALTIMORE (AP) — John D. Alexander, Baltimore attorney, has been appointed chairman of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association's Committee on Constitution and By-Laws.

Alexander is a past president of the association. Those serving with him will include Mrs. Ralph Donnelly of Hancock, Md., president of the Washington County Tuberculosis Association, and John D. Kessler, executive director of the Montgomery County Tuberculosis and Heart Association.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Infants 8 to 12 months old should be given hearing tests as a routine part of their health program, says a State Health Department official.

Dr. Benjamin D. White, chief of community services for the mentally retarded, said speech and hearing develop rapidly in the early, pre-school years, and recognizing hearing problems early can prevent many cases of permanent handicap.

BALTIMORE (AP) — University Hospital has received a three-year grant of $199,375 to provide for clinical trial of a technique for treating lung cancer by irradiation before surgery.

The National Institutes of Health awarded the grant. The method developed at University Hospital modifies tumors considered inoperable so they can be removed, the hospital said.

Woman Pays $500 Fine In Fatal Mishap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Virginia L. Tenschert, driver of an automobile which crashed into a store window March 16, fatally injuring a 15-year-old girl, was sentenced Friday to pay a $500 or spend 360 days in jail.

Mrs. Tenschert, 59, paid the fine.

The sentence was imposed by Judge Catherine B. Kelly of General Sessions Court.

Mrs. Tenschert had pleaded no contest to a charge of negligent homicide in connection with the death of Margaret W. Ranson, 15, of Aquasco, Md.

Police testified at a coroner's inquest that Mrs. Tenschert was backing her car into a parking spot in downtown Washington, when the car suddenly accelerated, jumped the curb and knocked the girl and her mother, Mrs. Gene Ransom, 47, through a plate glass window. The daughter died and Mrs. Ransom lost both legs.

Police said Mrs. Tenschert told them her foot struck the accelerator instead of the brake.

SRC Studies Need, Location Of Second Crossing Over Bay

Plan Report For '64 State Legislature

BALTIMORE (AP) — A study to determine the need and location of second crossings for motor vehicles over Chesapeake Bay, Potomac River and the Baltimore harbor was announced Friday by the State Roads Commission.

The commission already had been authorized by the legislature to analyze the best location for another bridge over the bay. John B. Funk, roads director, decided to expand the appraisal to the harbor and Potomac.

He said all three existing crossings are often jammed beyond capacity and the conditions can be expected to worsen as the driving public increases.

Funk said recommendations will be ready for the next session of the legislature in February.

Three sites have been mentioned for another bay bridge. One is parallel to the present span between Anne Arundel and Queen Annes counties. The other are between Baltimore and Kent Counties to the north or between Calvert and Dorchester to the south.

The bridge over the Potomac now serves traffic on Route 301 between Charles County and Virginia. The tunnel under Baltimore harbor primarily benefits travelers using Route 40 between Washington and the east.

Soviet Premier

Just as when he welcomed Harriman, Lord Hailsham of Britain and other members of the Western legations in the Kremlin last Monday, Khrushchev appeared in warm good humor. However, he was hoarse, as if he had a cold or was tired.

Here is what he proposed:

—The test ban covering all nuclear explosions except underground, which he said is not feasible now.

—Freezing, or reduction, of military budgets.

—A system of posts of inspection scattered both East and West of the Iron Curtain at airfields, railroad stations, highways and ports their presence might spot any troop movements for a surprise attack.

—Reduction of the armed forces on both sides in East and West Germany.

The proposal for inspections to shield both sides from surprise attack by ground or air forces had been made before.

It was originally advanced by the Soviet Union in the U.N. General Assembly five years ago, though airfields were omitted at that time. The Soviet memorandum offered in disarmament discussion then went even further in one way, suggesting aerial photography to check on parts of central Europe, the Soviet Union and the United States.

In the light of the new and optimistic approach to lowering East-West tensions, the idea appeared to take on new life.

7 Millionth Car

The seven millionth 1963 model passenger car was produced Thursday, it was reported. Only once before, in 1955, was that figure reached. Sometime, next week, the 1963 model count will overtake the 1955 record of 7,130,000 units. Production this week slipped less than 2 per cent from the previous week.

Cigarette Sales

Two big cigarette manufacturers—R. J. Reynolds Tobacco and Liggett & Myers Tobacco—reported improved earnings for the second quarter and first half. R. J. Reynolds had record sales and earnings for the two periods. Liggett & Myers had higher earnings on lower sales for the second quarter and first half.

Bomb Falls On City

San Francisco police officer William Porter holds a non-explosive 25-pound bomb and tail-fin which fell in the middle of Market Street during the noon rush hour Friday. The bomb, Navy officials said, accidently dropped from one of their reserve planes. No one was injured but bomb fragments and pieces of asphalt flew over a wide area. A window on the seventh floor of a building was broken.

Actor Marlon Brando Improving

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI)—Actor Marlon Brando's condition was reported "improving" Friday at St. John's Hospital where he was rushed by ambulance two days ago suffering from a recurring kidney ailment.

Doctors said the 39-year-old actor's temperature was dropping, but was still above normal.

Attendants at the hospital said they did not know how long he would be required to remain hospitalized.

Brando's physician said the actor is suffering from a recurrence of an inflammation of the kidney and bladder similar to an ailment that sent him to the same hospital last April.

His illness left in doubt on when he would be able to go through with plans to participate in Negro integration activities in the South. An attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said Brando's plans were being held in abeyance until he recovers.

Police Probe Harrowing Tale Of Kidnap, Rape

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — Police Friday investigated the harrowing story of a 28-year-old mother of four who said she was held captive in a mountain cabin for four days by a kidnapper who tied her to a bed.

Mrs. Wilson said after being knocked unconscious in the parking lot Monday, she was blindfolded, gagged and bound.

Once inside the cabin, she said, the kidnapper tied her spread-eagle to a bed. She said he raped her the next day.

Mrs. Wilson said she was given water only twice and a few rolls to eat during the four-day period.

She described her assailant as about 6 feet, 3 inches, and 240 pounds. She said he was about 40 and had bloodshot eyes.

She told of "long, very cold nights while I lay nude tied to the bed."

Mrs. Wilson's four children range from 2 to 9 years.

Israeli Jets Force 4 U.S. Planes To Land

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI)—Israeli jet fighters Friday forced four U.S. Department of Commerce planes to land at Lydda Airport after they violated Israel's air space, an army spokesman announced.

The spokesman said the planes were released shortly afterwards and that three of them took off for their destination. He said one plane had mechanical trouble and was expected to stay at the airport near here until at least Sunday.

The spokesman said he did not know the point of origin or the destination of the planes.

State Department Press Officer Richard Phillips said in Washington that the planes he described as weather reconnaissance aircraft took off from Daharan. He said they were released after the Israelis had "ascertained the nature" of the flights.

Phillips said the U.S. had filed a flight plan which involved crossing Israel but through an error or misunderstanding had not actually obtained clearance from Israeli authorities.

JFK Attends Christening Of Nephew

HYANNIS, Mass. (UPI) — Knee-deep in nieces and nephews, President Kennedy watched proudly Friday as Richard Cardinal Cushing, the archbishop of Boston, christened the new son of Attorney General and Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy.

The President and his brother flew to Cape Cod from Washington in the late afternoon, then joined forces with a multitude of relatives at St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic Church here for the christening of Christopher George Kennedy, the eighth child of the Robert Kennedys. Christopher George was born July 4.

From 14 to 20 children, including the President's daughter, Caroline, surrounded the baptismal font during the ceremony. They swirled at times through the legs of Secret Service agents, assorted relatives and friends and the God-parents — Mrs. Peter Lawford, who held the baby during the christening, and Dean Markham, an old family friend and executive secretary of the President's Committee on Narcotics and Drug Abuse.

After the christening, the President left the church for the Hyannisport Country Club to play golf. His wife, Jacqueline, expecting their third child next month, accompanied him on the course in an electric golf cart.

Civil Action Seen In Grain Diversion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some U.S. firms may face civil suits in the diversion in Europe of $50 million in government-bartered grain, even though there is no evidence of wrongdoing by the Americans, Congress was told Friday.

Several members of the House Agriculture Committee, hearing this testimony from Agriculture Department officials, expressed doubt that the government could sustain such a suit against an American exporter who acted in good faith.

The committee questioned the officials about some 605,000 metric tons of feed grains which never reached Austria under barter arrangement.

Foreign agricultural service administrator Raymond A. Ioanes and inspector general Lester P. Condon testified that a still incomplete investigation so far shows:

1. There is no indication any of the grain found its way behind the Iron Curtain.

2. Most of the diverted tonnage stayed in West Germany, where it had been unloaded for transshipment to landlocked Austria. Grain prices are substantially higher in Germany than in Austria. Some Austrian importers acted as fronts for West German interests who were the actual purchasers of the grain.

3. There is no evidence of collusion or wrongdoing by U.S. firms or nationals.

4. The U.S. government did not suffer any out-of-pocket loss but its balance-of-payments problem may have been aggravated to the extent the diversion lessened opportunities to sell grain for dollars in Germany.

5. The strategic materials due the government in the barter transactions have been, or are being, delivered.

Ioanes also said all barter transactions for grain to Austria have been cut off pending completion of the investigation.

Prisoner Escapes In Pink Panties

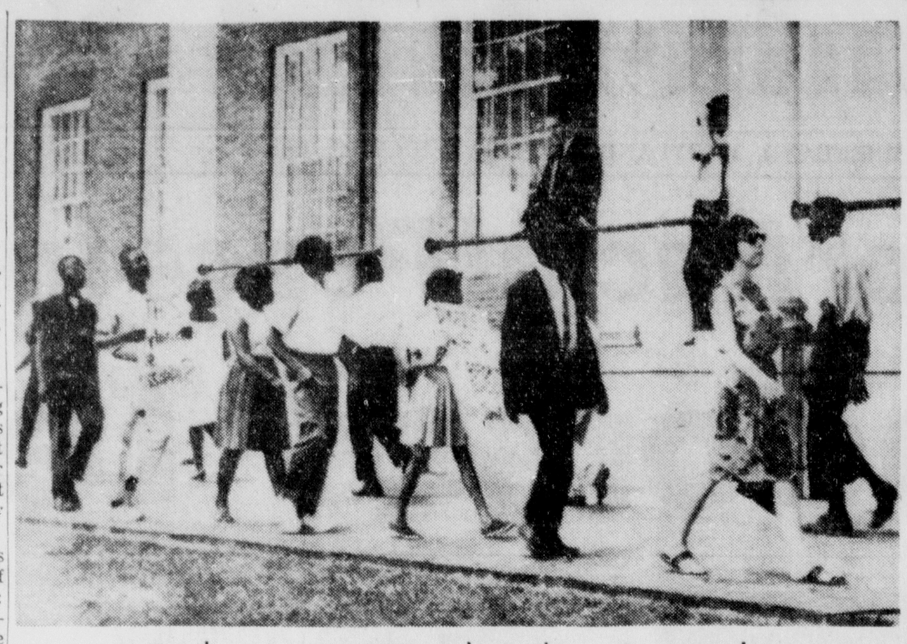
LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — A six-foot woman prisoner clad only in pink panties slugged a jailer with two bars of soap Friday and escaped with her boyfriend from a county jail here, police said.

The escapees were identified as Mrs. Millie Jones, 37, and William D. Splawn, 40, both of Eastland, Tex. They had been held on federal charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for a robbery at Eastland.

Mrs. Jones, who stands nearly six feet tall, asked jailer Lloyd Stewart early this morning if she could take a shower.

When Stewart opened the cell door to admit her to the shower room, she struck him four times on the head with two bars of soap stuffed in a shirt sleeve. It took four stitches to close a gash on Stewart's head.

The woman then grabbed the jailer's keys and freed Splawn.



Picketing Maryland's Capitol

These are among some 50 integrationists who traveled 60 miles from Cambridge to Annapolis yesterday to picket the Maryland Statehouse. get close,' he said, 'they move their end.' "

A few hours earlier, Cambridge integrationists carrying hand-lettered placards picketed the Statehouse for an hour to protest the detention of two Negro juveniles in training schools.

As the pickets marched without incident, the governor was in Baltimore preparing his speech on Cambridge.

In his talk, he said "I would not be justified in using the powers of my office, even if I could, to subvert a decision by the highest court of our state" and order the juveniles freed.

The Maryland Court of Appeals refused to release them until it can hear the arguments on merits of the case next fall.

Pickets At Statehouse

Some 50 demonstrators from Cambridge, almost all of them Negroes, paraded in a circle on the brick walk of the Statehouse in hot, humid weather, singing "We Shall Overcome" and other integration songs.

Negro leaders of the integration drive in Cambridge contend that two 15-year-old Negro juveniles were sent to training schools because they took part in racial demonstrations in Cambridge. The state has said the youngsters—unnamed because of their age—were committed for general delinquency.

All doors to the Statehouse were locked and guarded before the integrationists arrived in a bus and several cars. The regular guard force of the capitol was stationed outside and state troopers stood inside at the elevators and the governor's office.

This apparently was to make certain there was no repeat of a sit-in in the governor's office like the one integrationists staged July 1-3.

A few curious spectators watched the softly singing pickets outside but newsmen, photographers and policemen made up most of those there. After an hour, the demonstrators returned to Cambridge.

Finan Asks Mediation

In Cambridge, where demonstations were suspended Thursday, all was quiet. Further demonstrations in the racially scarred city of 12,000 were called off after Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan said he had asked a Racial Relations Committee of the Maryland Bar Association to mediate the dispute.

The committee chairman, William J. McWilliams of Annapolis, said Friday that "if the governor and the responsible Cambridge leaders, on both sides, ask us to sit down to discuss the situation with them, we are willing to do so."

McWilliams, a former circuit judge, said this had not been the purpose of the committee named July 12, that its main function would be to help leaders of other communities "in devising ways of avoiding or preventing a repetition of the Cambridge incident."

"It was felt there was very little, if anything, the committee could do about the Cambridge situation."

Gov. Tawes sent National Guard troops into Cambridge for the second time July 12 after a night of violence in which six white persons were wounded.

Maryland Briefs

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland Council of Churches, announcing its support of nonviolent demonstrations for racial equality, says Christians cannot "accept any compromise with discrimination or segregation of people on the basis of race."

In a statement, the organization urged its 2,000 member churches to support legislation, negotiations and demonstrations for equal rights for Negroes.

The council was among the sponsors of a July 4 massive demonstration at segregated, privately owned Gwynn Oak Amusement Park in suburban Baltimore. The Rev. Donzel C. Wildey, council executive secretary, was among those arrested at the park.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A request for a temporary injunction to bar the state from condemning land on Assateague Island will be heard July 26 in U.S. District Court.

Seeking the injunction, as Assateague property owners, are Harry Libshutz of Baltimore, Robert R. Rodenberg of Washington, D.C., and Disc Inc., a Washington development firm.

They contend the state is taking land without a clear plan for developing the Worcester County island and still could accept a federal proposal which would make the condemnation unnecessary.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Employers will pay the same unemployment insurance tax and adjustment rate during fiscal 1964 as they are paying now.

The Department of Employment Security announced Friday that the adjustment rate of 1.3 per cent which is added to employers' basic tax would not be changed. The basic rate is 1.6 to 4.2 per cent on payrolls.

The basic rate is figured on a three-year basis which takes into account the size of each employer's payroll and the number of benefits charged against his account. The trust fund totaled more than $103 million on June 30 of this year.

BALTIMORE (AP) — John D. Alexander, Baltimore attorney, has been appointed chairman of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association's Committee on Constitution and By-Laws.

Alexander is a past president of the association. Those serving with him will include Mrs. Ralph Donnelly of Hancock, Md., president of the Washington County Tuberculosis Association, and John D. Kessler, executive director of the Montgomery County Tuberculosis and Heart Association.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Infants 8 to 12 months old should be given hearing tests as a routine part of their health program, says a State Health Department official.

Dr. Benjamin D. White, chief of community services for the mentally retarded, said speech and hearing develop rapidly in the early, pre-school years, and recognizing hearing problems early can prevent many cases of permanent handicap.

BALTIMORE (AP) — University Hospital has received a three-year grant of $199,375 to provide for clinical trial of a technique for treating lung cancer by irradiation before surgery.

The National Institutes of Health awarded the grant. The method developed at University Hospital modifies tumors considered inoperable so they can be removed, the hospital said.

Woman Pays $500 Fine In Fatal Mishap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Virginia L. Tenschert, driver of an automobile which crashed into a store window March 16, fatally injuring a 15-year-old girl, was sentenced Friday to pay a $500 or spend 360 days in jail.

Mrs. Tenschert, 59, paid the fine.

The sentence was imposed by Judge Catherine B. Kelly of General Sessions Court.

Mrs. Tenschert had pleaded no contest to a charge of negligent homicide in connection with the death of Margaret W. Ranson, 15, of Aquasco, Md.

Police testified at a coroner's inquest that Mrs. Tenschert was backing her car into a parking spot in downtown Washington, when the car suddenly accelerated, jumped the curb and knocked the girl and her mother, Mrs. Gene Ransom, 47, through a plate glass window. The daughter died and Mrs. Ransom lost both legs.

Police said Mrs. Tenschert told them her foot struck the accelerator instead of the brake.

SRC Studies Need, Location Of Second Crossing Over Bay

Plan Report For '64 State Legislature

BALTIMORE (AP) — A study to determine the need and location of second crossings for motor vehicles over Chesapeake Bay, Potomac River and the Baltimore harbor was announced Friday by the State Roads Commission.

The commission already had been authorized by the legislature to analyze the best location for another bridge over the bay. John B. Funk, roads director, decided to expand the appraisal to the harbor and Potomac.

He said all three existing crossings are often jammed beyond capacity and the conditions can be expected to worsen as the driving public increases.

Funk said recommendations will be ready for the next session of the legislature in February.

Three sites have been mentioned for another bay bridge. One is parallel to the present span between Anne Arundel and Queen Annes counties. The other are between Baltimore and Kent Counties to the north or between Calvert and Dorchester to the south.

The bridge over the Potomac now serves traffic on Route 301 between Charles County and Virginia. The tunnel under Baltimore harbor primarily benefits travelers using Route 40 between Washington and the east.

Soviet Premier

Just as when he welcomed Harriman, Lord Hailsham of Britain and other members of the Western legations in the Kremlin last Monday, Khrushchev appeared in warm good humor. However, he was hoarse, as if he had a cold or was tired.

Here is what he proposed:

—The test ban covering all nuclear explosions except underground, which he said is not feasible now.

—Freezing, or reduction, of military budgets.

—A system of posts of inspection scattered both East and West of the Iron Curtain at airfields, railroad stations, highways and ports their presence might spot any troop movements for a surprise attack.

—Reduction of the armed forces on both sides in East and West Germany.

The proposal for inspections to shield both sides from surprise attack by ground or air forces had been made before.

It was originally advanced by the Soviet Union in the U.N. General Assembly five years ago, though airfields were omitted at that time. The Soviet memorandum offered in disarmament discussion then went even further in one way, suggesting aerial photography to check on parts of central Europe, the Soviet Union and the United States.

In the light of the new and optimistic approach to lowering East-West tensions, the idea appeared to take on new life.

7 Millionth Car

The seven millionth 1963 model passenger car was produced Thursday, it was reported. Only once before, in 1955, was that figure reached. Sometime, next week, the 1963 model count will overtake the 1955 record of 7,130,000 units. Production this week slipped less than 2 per cent from the previous week.

Cigarette Sales

Two big cigarette manufacturers—R. J. Reynolds Tobacco and Liggett & Myers Tobacco—reported improved earnings for the second quarter and first half. R. J. Reynolds had record sales and earnings for the two periods. Liggett & Myers had higher earnings on lower sales for the second quarter and first half.

Bomb Falls On City

San Francisco police officer William Porter holds a non-explosive 25-pound bomb and tail-fin which fell in the middle of Market Street during the noon rush hour Friday. The bomb, Navy officials said, accidently dropped from one of their reserve planes. No one was injured but bomb fragments and pieces of asphalt flew over a wide area. A window on the seventh floor of a building was broken.

Actor Marlon Brando Improving

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI)—Actor Marlon Brando's condition was reported "improving" Friday at St. John's Hospital where he was rushed by ambulance two days ago suffering from a recurring kidney ailment.

Doctors said the 39-year-old actor's temperature was dropping, but was still above normal.

Attendants at the hospital said they did not know how long he would be required to remain hospitalized.

Brando's physician said the actor is suffering from a recurrence of an inflammation of the kidney and bladder similar to an ailment that sent him to the same hospital last April.

His illness left in doubt on when he would be able to go through with plans to participate in Negro integration activities in the South. An attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said Brando's plans were being held in abeyance until he recovers.

Unemployment in the Mountain State dropped from 8.6 per cent in May to 8.3 per cent or 50,100 without jobs last month, the report said.

During June, 1962, the state had a labor force of 619,000 with 10.2 per cent or 63,500 unemployed.

No Hat For Pressman, Says Hatless Goldstein

BALTIMORE (AP)—The state comptroller doesn't wear a hat and he isn't going to donate one to the city comptroller.

The city comptroller, Hyman Pressman, claimed Thursday he won the hat in a bet with Louis L. Goldstein, state comptroller, over who could better estimate the surplus in the Maryland general revenue fund.

But Goldstein said Friday part of the bet was that Pressman would make his estimate at a December meeting of the Board of Revenue Estimates and that Pressman failed to attend the meeting.

Goldstein offered Pressman a second chance, however, to match estimates with him at the December meeting of the board.

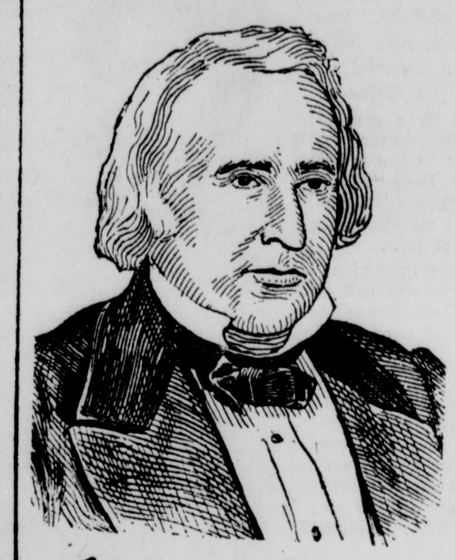
CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 289 The man born Jeremiah Jones Colbaith in Farmington, N. H., in 1812, got to be vice president of the United States, but you will not find this name in most reference books. He changed his identity, via court proceedings after he attained his majority, to Henry Wilson.



Henry Wilson

At 10, all responsibility for Jeremiah was signed away by his father to a farmer who held him in bonds of apprenticeship till Jeremiah was 21. Jeremiah had fewer than 12 months of school attendance during this servitude. Immediately after it came to a legal end, Jeremiah took steps to remedy his lack of education. He found work as a shoemaker's helper in Natick, Mass., where there were plenty of books available to read.

Not unsurprisingly after 11 years of a condition close to slavery, Henry Wilson became an ardent Abolitionist. His activity in the anti-slavery movement naturally put him into politics, and started his climbing the ladder of public office—Massachusetts legislator, U. S. senator were the first two rungs.

Wilson was chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs in 1861. He wasn't content with a noncombatant advisory and regulatory role. Henry had experience as a militia officer. He raised a regiment of Massachusetts volunteers and divided his time between attending sessions of Congress and commanding the regiment in the field. As an officer, he served under U. S. Grant, with whom he was to share the Republican national ticket in 1872 and be elected vice president.

Four 'Whiz Kids' Remain With Ford Co.

By JAMES STICKFORD

DETROIT (UPI)—After World War II, 10 young men soon to win the name "whiz kids" swept into the Ford Motor Co. and put their ideas to work.

The survivors now are middle aged, but their ideas still are working and they still are whizzing.

Of the original group, four now are with Ford, including company president Arjay R. Miller. One is dead. Four have gone into other businesses, and one—Robert S. McNamara—is President Kennedy's secretary of defense.

It began in 1946 when four young officers of the Air Corps' Statistical Control Office in the Defense Department debated what they would do in civilian life. They agreed that their experience in developing the statistical control unit had better armed them for a career in the business world than anything they had done before the war.

The original group consisted of Col. Charles B. (Tex) Thornton, head of the Statistical Control Office, F.C. (Jack) Reith, Ben D. Mills and George Moore. When the final 10-man team was assembled it included McNamara, Arjay Miller, James O. Wright, J. Edward Lundy, Charles E. Bosworth and W.R. Anderson.

"We had to discuss the terms of the proposition with all the members of the group several times," said Mills, vice president and general manager of Ford's Lincoln-Mercury Division.

"Each of us was thinking in terms of our own individual activity. We had done quite a lot of preparatory work. Ten large firms showed interest in us and finally we decided Ford offered the most potential."

When they began at Ford, their average age was 30 and their training ground was chiefly in the corporate finance office.

Anderson was the first to leave. He decided that California was more to his liking than Detroit. Now he operates a big storage and moving company based in Los Angeles.

Moore quit in 1947, ran a string of Ford and Lincoln - Mercury dealerships and more recently became board chairman of Information for Industries, Inc., Washington.

Thornton dropped out in 1948. He went on to become a vice president at Hughes Aircraft and then purchased Litton Industries, a fast growing electronic firm where he now serves as president and board chairman.

Reither was managing director of Ford of France and later vice president and general manager of the Mercury Division before he called it quits. He became president of the Crosley Division of Avco Manufacturing Corp. in Cincinnati. He died in 1961 at 46.

He was one of the stars of the team. In the Army Air Corps he had served as a consultant on management practices. At Ford he started as manager of the company's planning and financial analysis office. He moved up rapidly and had just climaxed his career by becoming Ford president when Kennedy asked him to be defense secretary.

The most recent "whiz kid" to leave Ford was Wright, who resigned in April. He had served as vice president car-truck group since 1960 but was downgraded to vice president credit and insurance group when Miller took over presidency of the company.

The four remaining "whiz kids" have fared well at Ford. Miller is president, Mills a vice president, and Lundy a vice president and head of the company's financial staff. Bosworth is purchasing director of the Ford Division.

Civil Rights Measure Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Arch A. Moore Jr., R-W. Va., Friday was criticized by Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., for "teaming up with Southern Democrats" in blocking an administration-supported civil rights measure.

The measure is a criminal justice act proposed by Chairman Emmanuel Celler, D-N. Y., of the House Judiciary Committee and co-sponsored by Kastenmeier.

The committee this week substituted a measure introduced by Moore.

"Once again Republicans have teamed up with Southern Democrats to block a bill that would have meant justice for thousands of indigent defendants — some of them Negroes arrested for trying to exercise their civil rights—in criminal cases in federal courts," Kastenmeier charged.

Kastenmeir said Moore's substitute measure was faulty in that:

—It did not provide for a paid public defender.

—It specifies that the local district judge, rather than the chief judge of the circuit, should select a panel of lawyers to serve as public defenders.

Under Moore's proposal, local bar associations or legal aid societies would approve the attorneys appointed for the civil rights petitioners.

Kastenmeier said such organizations in the South "are white organizations, and most have not been quick to defend Negroes deprived of their rights. "District judges in the South have not been known for their sympathy with civil rights," the Congressman added.

Thefts In W.Va. Offices Probed

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State Police pressed an investigation and State Finance Commissioner Truman E. Gore planned a meeting of his advisory council following Friday's disclosure that several offices at the statehouse have been broken into on at least six occasions.

The latest break-in apparently occurred Thursday night in the offices of the state auditor, state sinking fund, state budget director, the state employment security commissioner and the State Public Employes Retirement System.

Gore, who late last year made an unsuccessful bid for money to provide the statehouse complex with a uniformed capitol police force that would operate around-the-clock, said he planned to call a meeting of the Council of Finance and Administration.

Gore, whose budget division offices were broken into Thursday night, said that during the meeting he would bring up his police force proposal again and discuss other departmental problems.

"These break-ins, just the latest in many such incidents, lend support to my recommendation of last year for immediate need of a capitol police force," Gore said.

Employed to keep an eye on the statehouse complex during the night are three watchmen, one at the main capitol building, one in the office building housing the State Department of Motor Vehicles and the other in the office building housing the State Department of Employment Security.

Authorities said thieves broke into a concessions stand operated by a blind vendor and went through the offices of the State Tax Department and the State Board of Public Works.

On each occasion, the burglars, believed to be youngsters, took only some petty cash, cigarette lighters and other small items, authorities said. They also left burned matches on the floors of most of the offices entered.

State Police said thieves can easily escape being detected by nightwatchmen at the statehouse because of the size of the building and its accessibility through ground - floor windows and entrances.

Student Must Pay Back Note

CHARLTON, W. Va. (UPI) — State School Supt. Rex M. Smith was ordered Friday by State Atty. Gen. C. Donald Robertson to try to collect a $1,250 note owed the state by a teacher-trainee scholarship recipient who now works in New York as secretary.

The fund, set up by the 1957 Legislature, stipulated that recipients must teach in West Virginia for a certain period after completing their training or repay the state the value of the scholarship.

Robertson instructed Smith to notify the state treasurer's office if the payment remains outstanding.

Shepherdstown Book Published

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Historical buffs and Eastern Panhandle residents should get a special treat from a book recently published by the Jefferson County Historical Society.

The result of 50 years of research and evaluation of prominent men in this city, the book is authored by former Shepherd College Dean A. D. Kenamond. It singles out 50 prominent men who either had residence or business here. All the men are now deceased.

Shepherdstown, which last year marked its bicentennial, is claimed as the oldest town in what is now West Virginia. It was chartered in 1762 as "Mecklenburg", later known as "Shepherd's Town" and finally became known by its present name.

The book discusses men conspicuous in the founding and development of the town among land - owners, churchmen, teachers, soldiers and craftsmen.

The 128 page book is bound with red cloth and includes 22 portraits and illustrations.

Carl E. Twigg, spokesman for the opposition, said the group asked Earl E. Manges, local attorney, to prepare petitions against the commission proposal. The petitions, Twigg said, may be signed on Monday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the Fire Hall for presentation to the Board of County Commissioners.

No Hat For Pressman, Says Hatless Goldstein

BALTIMORE (AP)—The state comptroller doesn't wear a hat and he isn't going to donate one to the city comptroller.

The city comptroller, Hyman Pressman, claimed Thursday he won the hat in a bet with Louis L. Goldstein, state comptroller, over who could better estimate the surplus in the Maryland general revenue fund.

But Goldstein said Friday part of the bet was that Pressman would make his estimate at a December meeting of the Board of Revenue Estimates and that Pressman failed to attend the meeting.

Goldstein offered Pressman a second chance, however, to match estimates with him at the December meeting of the board.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 289 The man born Jeremiah Jones Colbaith in Farmington, N. H., in 1812, got to be vice president of the United States, but you will not find this name in most reference books. He changed his identity, via court proceedings after he attained his majority, to Henry Wilson.

Henry Wilson

At 10, all responsibility for Jeremiah was signed away by his father to a farmer who held him in bonds of apprenticeship till Jeremiah was 21. Jeremiah had fewer than 12 months of school attendance during this servitude. Immediately after it came to a legal end, Jeremiah took steps to remedy his lack of education. He found work as a shoemaker's helper in Natick, Mass., where there were plenty of books available to read.

Not unsurprisingly after 11 years of a condition close to slavery, Henry Wilson became an ardent Abolitionist. His activity in the anti-slavery movement naturally put him into politics, and started his climbing the ladder of public office—Massachusetts legislator, U. S. senator were the first two rungs.

Wilson was chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs in 1861. He wasn't content with a noncombatant advisory and regulatory role. Henry had experience as a militia officer. He raised a regiment of Massachusetts volunteers and divided his time between attending sessions of Congress and commanding the regiment in the field. As an officer, he served under U. S. Grant, with whom he was to share the Republican national ticket in 1872 and be elected vice president.

Four 'Whiz Kids' Remain With Ford Co.

By JAMES STICKFORD

DETROIT (UPI)—After World War II, 10 young men soon to win the name "whiz kids" swept into the Ford Motor Co. and put their ideas to work.

The survivors now are middle aged, but their ideas still are working and they still are whizzing.

Of the original group, four now are with Ford, including company president Arjay R. Miller. One is dead. Four have gone into other businesses, and one—Robert S. McNamara—is President Kennedy's secretary of defense.

It began in 1946 when four young officers of the Air Corps' Statistical Control Office in the Defense Department debated what they would do in civilian life. They agreed that their experience in developing the statistical control unit had better armed them for a career in the business world than anything they had done before the war.

The original group consisted of Col. Charles B. (Tex) Thornton, head of the Statistical Control Office, F.C. (Jack) Reith, Ben D. Mills and George Moore. When the final 10-man team was assembled it included McNamara, Arjay Miller, James O. Wright, J. Edward Lundy, Charles E. Bosworth and W.R. Anderson.

"We had to discuss the terms of the proposition with all the members of the group several times," said Mills, vice president and general manager of Ford's Lincoln-Mercury Division.

"Each of us was thinking in terms of our own individual activity. We had done quite a lot of preparatory work. Ten large firms showed interest in us and finally we decided Ford offered the most potential."

When they began at Ford, their average age was 30 and their training ground was chiefly in the corporate finance office.

Anderson was the first to leave. He decided that California was more to his liking than Detroit. Now he operates a big storage and moving company based in Los Angeles.

Moore quit in 1947, ran a string of Ford and Lincoln - Mercury dealerships and more recently became board chairman of Information for Industries, Inc., Washington.

Thornton dropped out in 1948. He went on to become a vice president at Hughes Aircraft and then purchased Litton Industries, a fast growing electronic firm where he now serves as president and board chairman.

Reither was managing director of Ford of France and later vice president and general manager of the Mercury Division before he called it quits. He became president of the Crosley Division of Avco Manufacturing Corp. in Cincinnati. He died in 1961 at 46.

He was one of the stars of the team. In the Army Air Corps he had served as a consultant on management practices. At Ford he started as manager of the company's planning and financial analysis office. He moved up rapidly and had just climaxed his career by becoming Ford president when Kennedy asked him to be defense secretary.

The most recent "whiz kid" to leave Ford was Wright, who resigned in April. He had served as vice president car-truck group since 1960 but was downgraded to vice president credit and insurance group when Miller took over presidency of the company.

The four remaining "whiz kids" have fared well at Ford. Miller is president, Mills a vice president, and Lundy a vice president and head of the company's financial staff. Bosworth is purchasing director of the Ford Division.

Civil Rights Measure Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Arch A. Moore Jr., R-W. Va., Friday was criticized by Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., for "teaming up with Southern Democrats" in blocking an administration-supported civil rights measure.

The measure is a criminal justice act proposed by Chairman Emmanuel Celler, D-N. Y., of the House Judiciary Committee and co-sponsored by Kastenmeier.

The committee this week substituted a measure introduced by Moore.

"Once again Republicans have teamed up with Southern Democrats to block a bill that would have meant justice for thousands of indigent defendants — some of them Negroes arrested for trying to exercise their civil rights—in criminal cases in federal courts," Kastenmeier charged.

Kastenmeir said Moore's substitute measure was faulty in that:

—It did not provide for a paid public defender.

—It specifies that the local district judge, rather than the chief judge of the circuit, should select a panel of lawyers to serve as public defenders.

Under Moore's proposal, local bar associations or legal aid societies would approve the attorneys appointed for the civil rights petitioners.

Kastenmeier said such organizations in the South "are white organizations, and most have not been quick to defend Negroes deprived of their rights. "District judges in the South have not been known for their sympathy with civil rights," the Congressman added.

Gore, who late last year made an unsuccessful bid for money to provide the statehouse complex with a uniformed capitol police force that would operate around-the-clock, said he planned to call a meeting of the Council of Finance and Administration.

Gore, whose budget division offices were broken into Thursday night, said that during the meeting he would bring up his police force proposal again and discuss other departmental problems.

"These break-ins, just the latest in many such incidents, lend support to my recommendation of last year for immediate need of a capitol police force," Gore said.

Employed to keep an eye on the statehouse complex during the night are three watchmen, one at the main capitol building, one in the office building housing the State Department of Motor Vehicles and the other in the office building housing the State Department of Employment Security.

Authorities said thieves broke into a concessions stand operated by a blind vendor and went through the offices of the State Tax Department and the State Board of Public Works.

On each occasion, the burglars, believed to be youngsters, took only some petty cash, cigarette lighters and other small items, authorities said. They also left burned matches on the floors of most of the offices entered.

State Police said thieves can easily escape being detected by nightwatchmen at the statehouse because of the size of the building and its accessibility through ground - floor windows and entrances.

Student Must Pay Back Note

CHARLTON, W. Va. (UPI) — State School Supt. Rex M. Smith was ordered Friday by State Atty. Gen. C. Donald Robertson to try to collect a $1,250 note owed the state by a teacher-trainee scholarship recipient who now works in New York as secretary.

The fund, set up by the 1957 Legislature, stipulated that recipients must teach in West Virginia for a certain period after completing their training or repay the state the value of the scholarship.

Robertson instructed Smith to notify the state treasurer's office if the payment remains outstanding.

Shepherdstown Book Published

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Historical buffs and Eastern Panhandle residents should get a special treat from a book recently published by the Jefferson County Historical Society.

The result of 50 years of research and evaluation of prominent men in this city, the book is authored by former Shepherd College Dean A. D. Kenamond. It singles out 50 prominent men who either had residence or business here. All the men are now deceased.

Shepherdstown, which last year marked its bicentennial, is claimed as the oldest town in what is now West Virginia. It was chartered in 1762 as "Mecklenburg", later known as "Shepherd's Town" and finally became known by its present name.

The book discusses men conspicuous in the founding and development of the town among land - owners, churchmen, teachers, soldiers and craftsmen.

The 128 page book is bound with red cloth and includes 22 portraits and illustrations.

A kangaroo can jump 42 feet and up to 10½ feet high at speeds up to 30 mph. And he'd better do more of it, because an Australian canning company is selling $240,000 worth of kangaroo-tail soup a year, much to U. S. markets.

Iran Student Discusses U.S. Visit

"When I had to go to the hospital, I was scared I would know no one, and who would take care of me, but it's wonderful," was the way 18-year-old Miss Mandana Afra of Iran summed up her appendectomy at Memorial Hospital yesterday. She expressed her gratitude to her doctor and nurses, and her Cumberland hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Eisenberger. However, when asked how she felt, Miss Afra admitted she was having a lot of pain.

One of the 67 foreign students who visited here the weekend of July 13, Mandana was taken ill Sunday and operated upon Monday.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mohamad Afra, she was completing her year of study in the United States under the American Field Service exchange scholarships. Her "American parents" were Mr. and Mrs. Albert G Schofer, Blasdell, N.Y., 10 miles from Buffalo.

The most important discovery she has made in the United States, Mandana said, is "brotherhood" no matter the race or creed. "People are all the same" and they help each other. Although she is a Moslem and says her prayers as she is supposed to do five times a day, she also loved to attend church with Mr. Schofer, a Lutheran minister and listen to his sermons. "We both believe in the same God."

Speaking of her own parents, Mandana said her father is a professor of English in high school and the university and her mother is a teacher in elementary school. She has five sisters and four brothers. She hopes they do not know she is ill for they would worry.

Because of the difference in the school systems, although Mandana graduated from high school here this year, when she returns to Iran she will have one more year in high school. Here she had five or six subjects, while in Iran 21 are required. There they have six years of elementary school and six of high school. After finishing high school, she plans to make entrance examinations in as many colleges as possible and will go to the one where she is accepted, but hopes it will be Cornell, for she would like to study agriculture so upon her return to Iran she can assist in the land reform program.

Although she had been planning to join the 2,500 other students in New Jersey for a farewell party before returning home July 25, last evenng Mandana said, "Right now I do not know."

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As the owner of a neighborhood hardware store I would like to thank you, personally, for stimulating business.

Recently you published a letter in your column about a teenage girl who did a great deal of talking on the telephone. Her mother decided to put a 5-minute time limit on her phone conversations. She bought an automatic egg timer and placed it by the telephone.

Since that letter appeared I have sold seven egg timers to mothers of teenagers. Each mother told me she got the idea from Ann Landers' column.

One woman who came in to buy an egg timer bought a power lawn mower. Another woman paid her bill which was long overdue. My best wishes to you, Ann, and my thanks. — HAPPY MERCHANT

DEAR HAPPY: You're welcome. But I do hope I made it clear that a mother who sets the egg timer at 5 minutes is a bit hard-boiled.

A 15-minute limit is more realistic and not unreasonable.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm not a great letter writer so I'll get right to the point.

I've always trusted my husband and felt relaxed when he had to take a business trip or stay in town and work late. It never occurred to me that he'd ever violate that trust. I'm not a frigid person, nor have I lost my looks in the twenty years we've been married, so it was a real blow when I discovered he had been untrue to me on two occasions—with the same girl.

He has begged me to forgive him, swears he doesn't want a divorce or a separation. He doesn't know why he did it—says he just felt like kicking up his heels.

I'm 37 years old and still care for him a great deal. Now I feel I've wasted 20 years on someone who wasn't worth it. We have five children so I must find the answer. Can you help me?—EDGE OF DOOM

DEAR EDGE: You have five good reasons to forgive and forget so don't be a fool and let your injured pride drive you into an impossible corner from which you may never extricate yourself.

He has let you know he's sorry. He wants a chance to prove he can be a good husband. Now is your chance to be bigger than ever in his eyes. Don't muff it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are two teenage sisters who need your help. All our skirts are at least two inches longer than they should be. We've talked until we've run out of wind, but mom says the skirts are going to stay where they are and that's final.

We feel out of place with the other girls who appear so sharp in their short skirts. It's getting so we hate to go anyplace because we look like we just came over from the Old Country.

Almost every day mom quotes "what Ann Landers said" so we know she has respect for your opinion. Please be on our side. Thank you. — LONG SKIRTED SISTERS

DEAR SISTERS: Hem lengths should be guided to a degree by fashion trends. But common sense and good judgment is more important than any trend.

Each of us knows better than Trigere or Dior what our legs look like. If you gals want your hems above the knee I'm with your mother. A good length for teenagers is about two inches below the middle of the knee cap.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DIRTY TRICK: Why expect your friends to judge you by your good intentions while you judge them on the basis of their behavior? It's awfully hard to read minds these days. Get with it Kiddo.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

To Be Nice To Know — Keep Busy

It may take more care of the figure and skin to stay attractive in looks, and more initiative to stay involved in worthwhile activities to continue to be attractive in personality as time goes on, but the woman who makes the effort finds it infinitely rewarding. She isn't left out of things. She's in demand.

The feeling of being left out and passed by can come when the children need mother much less, and younger associates can take over so much more responsibility. And it does come to those who don't keep up their interests outside a small circle. The danger there is grave of sinking into self-pity and self-neglect, and apathy about anything but personal concerns. This is the sure way to dim enthusiasm about her on the part of anyone else.

Sometimes a serious stock-taking at the turning point does wonders. Many mature women do under-valuate themselves — do not realize how much they can contribute to anything they undertake from experience that comes only with maturity, from the good judgment, understanding, and sympathy that comes with it, the mastery of the social graces, the knowledge of how to deal with others. What she has learned of life now can be used with profit to others, and if she gets busy and puts it to work she'll soon find out with how much profit to herself.

NO ONE CAN BE CHARMING WITHOUT PEP AND VITALITY! The 20-page, illustrated booklet, "Personality PLUS Through Diet" gives teen-agers easy ways to become more healthy, more alive! Just send 25c and your name and address to "Secrets of Charm," c/o this newspaper.

Approval also was given to have the cornice of the building repaired as soon as the proper equipment is available, then paint the trim. Col. Millholland volunteered to keep the grass and hedge trimmed this summer.

It was announced that Francis Kenney turned the rights of his booklet, "Structures Along The Old National Pike in Western Maryland," over to the historical society and it will receive all proceeds. As soon as the cover design is completed, it will be ready for distribution. It will be followed by other historical booklets.

In accordance with the by-laws, compiled by Judge Cobey, there are to be four meetings a year, in January, April, July and October.

Thirty persons attended.

Fellowship Honors Couple

The Adult Fellowship of Cresaptown Methodist Church recently honored Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frankenberry, 90 Bowery Street, Frostburg, on their 25th wedding anniversary. Both Mr. and Mrs. Frankenberry are active members of Cresaptown Methodist Church.

Mrs. Ema Frankenberry is the daughter of Mrs. Cora Griffith of Frostburg, and Mr. Charles Frankenberry is the son of Mrs. Lester Harshbarger of Mt. Union, Pa. They were married July 9, 1938, in Frostburg.

About 100 guests were entertained at the anniversary party with a "mock wedding" performed by friends of the couple.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As the owner of a neighborhood hardware store I would like to thank you, personally, for stimulating business.

Recently you published a letter in your column about a teenage girl who did a great deal of talking on the telephone. Her mother decided to put a 5-minute time limit on her phone conversations. She bought an automatic egg timer and placed it by the telephone.

Since that letter appeared I have sold seven egg timers to mothers of teenagers. Each mother told me she got the idea from Ann Landers' column.

One woman who came in to buy an egg timer bought a power lawn mower. Another woman paid her bill which was long overdue. My best wishes to you, Ann, and my thanks. — HAPPY MERCHANT

DEAR HAPPY: You're welcome. But I do hope I made it clear that a mother who sets the egg timer at 5 minutes is a bit hard-boiled.

A 15-minute limit is more realistic and not unreasonable.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm not a great letter writer so I'll get right to the point.

I've always trusted my husband and felt relaxed when he had to take a business trip or stay in town and work late. It never occurred to me that he'd ever violate that trust. I'm not a frigid person, nor have I lost my looks in the twenty years we've been married, so it was a real blow when I discovered he had been untrue to me on two occasions—with the same girl.

He has begged me to forgive him, swears he doesn't want a divorce or a separation. He doesn't know why he did it—says he just felt like kicking up his heels.

I'm 37 years old and still care for him a great deal. Now I feel I've wasted 20 years on someone who wasn't worth it. We have five children so I must find the answer. Can you help me?—EDGE OF DOOM

DEAR EDGE: You have five good reasons to forgive and forget so don't be a fool and let your injured pride drive you into an impossible corner from which you may never extricate yourself.

He has let you know he's sorry. He wants a chance to prove he can be a good husband. Now is your chance to be bigger than ever in his eyes. Don't muff it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are two teenage sisters who need your help. All our skirts are at least two inches longer than they should be. We've talked until we've run out of wind, but mom says the skirts are going to stay where they are and that's final.

We feel out of place with the other girls who appear so sharp in their short skirts. It's getting so we hate to go anyplace because we look like we just came over from the Old Country.

Almost every day mom quotes "what Ann Landers said" so we know she has respect for your opinion. Please be on our side. Thank you. — LONG SKIRTED SISTERS

DEAR SISTERS: Hem lengths should be guided to a degree by fashion trends. But common sense and good judgment is more important than any trend.

Each of us knows better than Trigere or Dior what our legs look like. If you gals want your hems above the knee I'm with your mother. A good length for teenagers is about two inches below the middle of the knee cap.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DIRTY TRICK: Why expect your friends to judge you by your good intentions while you judge them on the basis of their behavior? It's awfully hard to read minds these days. Get with it Kiddo.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

To Be Nice To Know — Keep Busy

It may take more care of the figure and skin to stay attractive in looks, and more initiative to stay involved in worthwhile activities to continue to be attractive in personality as time goes on, but the woman who makes the effort finds it infinitely rewarding. She isn't left out of things. She's in demand.

The feeling of being left out and passed by can come when the children need mother much less, and younger associates can take over so much more responsibility. And it does come to those who don't keep up their interests outside a small circle. The danger there is grave of sinking into self-pity and self-neglect, and apathy about anything but personal concerns. This is the sure way to dim enthusiasm about her on the part of anyone else.

Sometimes a serious stock-taking at the turning point does wonders. Many mature women do under-valuate themselves — do not realize how much they can contribute to anything they undertake from experience that comes only with maturity, from the good judgment, understanding, and sympathy that comes with it, the mastery of the social graces, the knowledge of how to deal with others. What she has learned of life now can be used with profit to others, and if she gets busy and puts it to work she'll soon find out with how much profit to herself.

NO ONE CAN BE CHARMING WITHOUT PEP AND VITALITY! The 20-page, illustrated booklet, "Personality PLUS Through Diet" gives teen-agers easy ways to become more healthy, more alive! Just send 25c and your name and address to "Secrets of Charm," c/o this newspaper.

STEPS

You can't see any farther ahead from the second step than you could from the first. But you know you are closer to the top.

And that very aptly describes one aspect of man's quest for spiritual understanding.

ONE SUNDAY IN CHURCH DOESN'T MAKE US CHRISTIANS. And sometimes a month of Sundays finds us still struggling with doubts and wrestling with temptations. Prayers don't always seem to have been answered. And parts of the Bible may constantly baffle us.

But the truth of the matter is that every spiritual step we take is exactly that — a step. It may leave our perspective unchanged for the moment. But it is bringing us closer to that higher level of life from which man's vision enlarges.

Until we reach life's spiritual crest, the most important step is always the NEXT. Join the millions who'll climb a little closer to the summit Sunday.

No Church, Science Conflict Seen

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

He is also a licensed lay preacher in the Methodist Church.

As a man who is deeply involved in both worlds, he sees no "conflict" between science and religion.

"Even a scientist needs religious faith," he said in an interview.

"Science has made tremendous contributions to mankind. It has penetrated the mysteries of the material universe and freed the minds of men from ignorance and superstition.

Dr. Dryden does not accept the cliche that religious people live by "faith" whereas scientific people live by "objective" knowledge.

"The areas of knowledge which one person can explore in detail and experience for himself, even in a lifetime, are very few," he said.

"No man could possibly live in the modern world on the knowledge he himself has mastered. He lives by faith in the results of the experience of other men, both those now living and those of past generations.

"His interpretation of the universe. . .of meaning and value. . . of moral purpose. . .and his whole philosophy of life are great adventures of faith. In scientific language, they are extrapolations from the information and insights available to him as one particular individual with a sharply limited knowledge of our universe."

Leads to Materialism

Dr. Dryden said that some people "are led to a purely materialistic view" of the universe.

"Others, including myself, are persuaded that in the universe there are both the material and the spiritual."

Either view, he emphasized, is necessarily held on faith, because neither can be demonstrated conclusively by the objective methods of science.

Occasionally, some scientist will venture beyond the proper boundaries of his discipline and attempt to "prove" the materialistic view of the universe.

Dr. Dryden said he had read an article recently by a scientist who felt that the apparent spiritual dimensions of human existence could all be adequately explained in materialistic terms.

"He was convinced," said Dr. Dryden, "that the inner life of man—his consciousness of self, his power of thought, his conscience, his ideals—were the direct result of the physical and chemical activity of the brain." He found "proof" of this thesis in "the fact that damage to the brain destroyed some or all of the manifestations, and that drugs could excite or pacify an individual."

Dryden Ponders Argument

Dr. Dryden said he found himself thinking about this argument one Sunday morning in church "when I should have been listening to the sermon."

"It occurred to me that scientific progress has made us familiar with many realities that are not directly perceived by our own physical senses.

"I recalled that at that very moment there were present within the room invisible electromagnetic waves from hundreds of radio and television stations carrying voices, music and pictures from as many distant places.

"Although I could not at the moment hear or see them, I knew that if a rather complex assemblage of copper, glass, aluminum and a number of other scarce materials whose very names are unknown to most of us were brought into the room and properly adjusted, any one of these programs could be selected and heard or seen.

"I knew too that if I damaged the radio or television receiver, the program would disappear. But this certainly would not in any way remove the radio waves from the room; nor would it demonstrate that the entire phenomena were produced by the apparatus in the room.

"Then my thought returned to my faith that there was also present within that same room, and elsewhere, an ever-present spiritual Personality whose voice can also be heard by another, even more complicated, assembly of materials—the assembly of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen and other chemicals which we call a human being.

"If a human being's physical body is damaged or diseased, the reception may indeed fail. But that does not affect the reality of the invisible spiritual forces, any more than breaking a receiver proves that there aren't any radio waves in a room."

Aren't there people, with quite healthy bodies, who seem unable to "receive" the spiritual dimension of life?

"I'm not sure about that. I'm inclined to feel that anyone who has not cultivated his spiritual capacities is just as deformed as if he had lost an arm or a leg."

STEPS

You can't see any farther ahead from the second step than you could from the first. But you know you are closer to the top.

And that very aptly describes one aspect of man's quest for spiritual understanding.

ONE SUNDAY IN CHURCH DOESN'T MAKE US CHRISTIANS. And sometimes a month of Sundays finds us still struggling with doubts and wrestling with temptations. Prayers don't always seem to have been answered. And parts of the Bible may constantly baffle us.

But the truth of the matter is that every spiritual step we take is exactly that — a step. It may leave our perspective unchanged for the moment. But it is bringing us closer to that higher level of life from which man's vision enlarges.

Until we reach life's spiritual crest, the most important step is always the NEXT. Join the millions who'll climb a little closer to the summit Sunday.

No Church, Science Conflict Seen

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

He is also a licensed lay preacher in the Methodist Church.

As a man who is deeply involved in both worlds, he sees no "conflict" between science and religion.

"Even a scientist needs religious faith," he said in an interview.

"Science has made tremendous contributions to mankind. It has penetrated the mysteries of the material universe and freed the minds of men from ignorance and superstition.

Dr. Dryden does not accept the cliche that religious people live by "faith" whereas scientific people live by "objective" knowledge.

"The areas of knowledge which one person can explore in detail and experience for himself, even in a lifetime, are very few," he said.

"No man could possibly live in the modern world on the knowledge he himself has mastered. He lives by faith in the results of the experience of other men, both those now living and those of past generations.

"His interpretation of the universe. . .of meaning and value. . . of moral purpose. . .and his whole philosophy of life are great adventures of faith. In scientific language, they are extrapolations from the information and insights available to him as one particular individual with a sharply limited knowledge of our universe."

Leads to Materialism

Dr. Dryden said that some people "are led to a purely materialistic view" of the universe.

"Others, including myself, are persuaded that in the universe there are both the material and the spiritual."

Either view, he emphasized, is necessarily held on faith, because neither can be demonstrated conclusively by the objective methods of science.

Occasionally, some scientist will venture beyond the proper boundaries of his discipline and attempt to "prove" the materialistic view of the universe.

Dr. Dryden said he had read an article recently by a scientist who felt that the apparent spiritual dimensions of human existence could all be adequately explained in materialistic terms.

"He was convinced," said Dr. Dryden, "that the inner life of man—his consciousness of self, his power of thought, his conscience, his ideals—were the direct result of the physical and chemical activity of the brain." He found "proof" of this thesis in "the fact that damage to the brain destroyed some or all of the manifestations, and that drugs could excite or pacify an individual."

Dryden Ponders Argument

Dr. Dryden said he found himself thinking about this argument one Sunday morning in church "when I should have been listening to the sermon."

"It occurred to me that scientific progress has made us familiar with many realities that are not directly perceived by our own physical senses.

"I recalled that at that very moment there were present within the room invisible electromagnetic waves from hundreds of radio and television stations carrying voices, music and pictures from as many distant places.

"Although I could not at the moment hear or see them, I knew that if a rather complex assemblage of copper, glass, aluminum and a number of other scarce materials whose very names are unknown to most of us were brought into the room and properly adjusted, any one of these programs could be selected and heard or seen.

"I knew too that if I damaged the radio or television receiver, the program would disappear. But this certainly would not in any way remove the radio waves from the room; nor would it demonstrate that the entire phenomena were produced by the apparatus in the room.

"Then my thought returned to my faith that there was also present within that same room, and elsewhere, an ever-present spiritual Personality whose voice can also be heard by another, even more complicated, assembly of materials—the assembly of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen and other chemicals which we call a human being.

"If a human being's physical body is damaged or diseased, the reception may indeed fail. But that does not affect the reality of the invisible spiritual forces, any more than breaking a receiver proves that there aren't any radio waves in a room."

Aren't there people, with quite healthy bodies, who seem unable to "receive" the spiritual dimension of life?

"I'm not sure about that. I'm inclined to feel that anyone who has not cultivated his spiritual capacities is just as deformed as if he had lost an arm or a leg."

Area Liquor Revenue Up For Quarter

Allegany County will receive a check for $18,167.50 from the state comptroller's office for the 50 cents per gallon on 36,335 gallons of distilled spirits delivered in the county during the fourth quarter of this year from April through June.

This is an increase of 7.85 per cent over the amount of revenues from this source during the same quarter in 1962. For the fiscal year of July, 1962 through June, 1963 a total of 147,863 gallons was received and sold in Allegany County. The state revenue realized by the county from this source during the fiscal year was $73,931.50, an increase of 6.60 per cent for the previous fiscal year.

Garrett County will receive a check for $1,577.50 for the quarter ending June 30 on 3,155 gallons of distilled spirits received and sold in the county. This is an increase of 8.94 per cent over the same quarter in 1962. The fiscal year ending June 30, 1963 the gallonage was 12,047 with state revenue allotment of $6,023.50. This was an increase of 6.12 per cent over the previous year.

The fourth quarter distribution reflected only two subdivisions receiving less revenue than was allocated for the like quarter last year. The increase ranged from 1.73 per cent in Kent County to 17.48 per cent in Wicomico.

It is significant to note Dorchester County, where military law restricted the local sale of alcoholic beverages during part of the fourth quarter, reflected a decline from the similar like quarter last year of 5.92 per cent. Prince George's County keeps in the forefront with a 15.75 per cent increase over last year's fourth quarterly distribution and for the full 1963 fiscal year went ahead of last year by 14 per cent, which represented a take of 10 per cent of the total amount distributed by the State to the subdivisions.

County Accepts Truck Bids

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday accepted the bid of the Light and Decker Company to provide two dump trucks for the Roads Department.

A low bid of $7,654.50 was made by the firm several weeks ago and the offer was accepted yesterday upon completion of an analysis of all bids submitted.

The board also accepted the bid of Joseph T. Sirna to provide and install three water coolers at the County Home for $803.65.

A tractor used by the Roads Department which is no longer needed will be sold for $800, according to Commissioner Russell Carder.

A letter was received from Francis A. Kenney, chairman of the County Committee on Problems of the Aging, stating that the unit will need only $250 for expenses of operating the agency during the fiscal year starting July 1. The board had put $500 in the budget for the committee.

Kenney explained that last year a report had been compiled on the various agencies which handle matters pertaining to the aged but this year no programs of this nature are required.

Three bids were received by the board on a car for use by Albert S. Paye, county engineer.

Burkett Oldsmobile Company offered to provide the car for $2,951.89 with immediate delivery. Potomac Motors Company bid $2,215.58 for a six cylinder and for $84 additional would furnish an eight cylinder auto. Gratton Ford Company offered a six cylinder for $2,148.85 with $97.62 additional for an eight cylinder machine. The bids will be tabulated.

Plant Additions

CHICAGO (UPI) — AMOCO Chemicals Corp. plans to build two additions to its Joliet, Ill., plant, increasing capacity of the plant to 150 million pounds annually of terrephthalic and isophthalic products, used in plastics, paints and fiber glass.

Meeting Set Thursday At Blue Spring

An "on site" meeting will be held Thursday at 1:30 p.m. at Blue Spring on Oldtown Road by officials of several agencies to discuss the proposed fishing hole in the old C&O Canal by using the water from the spring.

County Commissioner Russell Carder received word yesterday from W. Edwin Dale, superintendent of the canal properties in this area, stating that he would come here that day with a number of engineers of the National Park Service, which administers the canal, to go over the program proposed.

Others who will attend are Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke, several technical men from the State Game and Inland Fish Commission, Albert S. Paye, county engineer and a number of interested sports club officers.

The proposal, suggested some weeks ago by Commissioner Carder, calls for using the Blue Spring waters, which are pure and cool, in the bed of the old canal between the locks in the canal in that section.

This would provide a fishing hole for area sportsmen of several miles between a nearby canal lock and one some distance below. The proposed fishing hole would be similar to the one in use on the canal at Oldtown and named after Battie Mixon, a state game warden.

The spring emerges from the banks of the Potomac River and attracts thousands of carp and suckers and other fish species in the spring each year.

County Names Road Foreman

He will take over as foreman on August 1, replacing Austin Mallow, who had been temporary foreman for several months. Mallow had asked to be relieved of the post so he could return to his regular job in the Piney Plains section, where he resides.

Wentling has been with the department four years. His appointment will be referred to the Civil Service Commission, listing his reclassification to a higher pay grade.

The commissioners granted permission to the Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Company to block off Walnut Street in that community during the evening hours July 22 through July 27 to hold a street carnival and bazar.

Harry T. Skelly, roads supervisor, reported that the Pack Horse Road had been sprayed for dust control.

Mrs. Alvin T. Nave, Potomac Park, appeared before the board to ask that something be done about repairs and settling dust on Avenue F. The board referred the matter to Skelly for investigation.

Three ABL Employes To Be Transferred

The transfer of three employes at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory to other Hercules Powder Company plants has been announced.

Porter F. Samples was assigned to the firm's Rocky Hill, N. J., plant; James D. Langseth to Radford, Va., and Charles H. Scott to Bacchus, Utah.

Area Liquor Revenue Up For Quarter

Allegany County will receive a check for $18,167.50 from the state comptroller's office for the 50 cents per gallon on 36,335 gallons of distilled spirits delivered in the county during the fourth quarter of this year from April through June.

This is an increase of 7.85 per cent over the amount of revenues from this source during the same quarter in 1962. For the fiscal year of July, 1962 through June, 1963 a total of 147,863 gallons was received and sold in Allegany County. The state revenue realized by the county from this source during the fiscal year was $73,931.50, an increase of 6.60 per cent for the previous fiscal year.

Garrett County will receive a check for $1,577.50 for the quarter ending June 30 on 3,155 gallons of distilled spirits received and sold in the county. This is an increase of 8.94 per cent over the same quarter in 1962. The fiscal year ending June 30, 1963 the gallonage was 12,047 with state revenue allotment of $6,023.50. This was an increase of 6.12 per cent over the previous year.

The fourth quarter distribution reflected only two subdivisions receiving less revenue than was allocated for the like quarter last year. The increase ranged from 1.73 per cent in Kent County to 17.48 per cent in Wicomico.

It is significant to note Dorchester County, where military law restricted the local sale of alcoholic beverages during part of the fourth quarter, reflected a decline from the similar like quarter last year of 5.92 per cent. Prince George's County keeps in the forefront with a 15.75 per cent increase over last year's fourth quarterly distribution and for the full 1963 fiscal year went ahead of last year by 14 per cent, which represented a take of 10 per cent of the total amount distributed by the State to the subdivisions.

The White House grounds cover some 17 acres within the surrounding fence.

Records show that cotton was grown and spun in India as early as 3000 B. C.

JOINS AMCELLE—Steven M. Berman, above, has joined the Amcelle Plant of Celanese Fibers Company as a quality engineer. He is a graduate of Lowell (Mass.) Technological Institute and had been employed by the Potomac Chemical Company in Hagerstown before joining Amcelle. He is a member of the American Association of Textile Chemists and Colorists and the American Society for Quality Control.

County Accepts Truck Bids

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday accepted the bid of the Light and Decker Company to provide two dump trucks for the Roads Department.

A low bid of $7,654.50 was made by the firm several weeks ago and the offer was accepted yesterday upon completion of an analysis of all bids submitted.

The board also accepted the bid of Joseph T. Sirna to provide and install three water coolers at the County Home for $803.65.

A tractor used by the Roads Department which is no longer needed will be sold for $800, according to Commissioner Russell Carder.

A letter was received from Francis A. Kenney, chairman of the County Committee on Problems of the Aging, stating that the unit will need only $250 for expenses of operating the agency during the fiscal year starting July 1. The board had put $500 in the budget for the committee.

Kenney explained that last year a report had been compiled on the various agencies which handle matters pertaining to the aged but this year no programs of this nature are required.

Three bids were received by the board on a car for use by Albert S. Paye, county engineer.

Burkett Oldsmobile Company offered to provide the car for $2,951.89 with immediate delivery. Potomac Motors Company bid $2,215.58 for a six cylinder and for $84 additional would furnish an eight cylinder auto. Gratton Ford Company offered a six cylinder for $2,148.85 with $97.62 additional for an eight cylinder machine. The bids will be tabulated.

Plant Additions

CHICAGO (UPI) — AMOCO Chemicals Corp. plans to build two additions to its Joliet, Ill., plant, increasing capacity of the plant to 150 million pounds annually of terrephthalic and isophthalic products, used in plastics, paints and fiber glass.

Meeting Set Thursday At Blue Spring

An "on site" meeting will be held Thursday at 1:30 p.m. at Blue Spring on Oldtown Road by officials of several agencies to discuss the proposed fishing hole in the old C&O Canal by using the water from the spring.

County Commissioner Russell Carder received word yesterday from W. Edwin Dale, superintendent of the canal properties in this area, stating that he would come here that day with a number of engineers of the National Park Service, which administers the canal, to go over the program proposed.

Others who will attend are Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke, several technical men from the State Game and Inland Fish Commission, Albert S. Paye, county engineer and a number of interested sports club officers.

The proposal, suggested some weeks ago by Commissioner Carder, calls for using the Blue Spring waters, which are pure and cool, in the bed of the old canal between the locks in the canal in that section.

This would provide a fishing hole for area sportsmen of several miles between a nearby canal lock and one some distance below. The proposed fishing hole would be similar to the one in use on the canal at Oldtown and named after Battie Mixon, a state game warden.

The spring emerges from the banks of the Potomac River and attracts thousands of carp and suckers and other fish species in the spring each year.

County Names Road Foreman

He will take over as foreman on August 1, replacing Austin Mallow, who had been temporary foreman for several months. Mallow had asked to be relieved of the post so he could return to his regular job in the Piney Plains section, where he resides.

Wentling has been with the department four years. His appointment will be referred to the Civil Service Commission, listing his reclassification to a higher pay grade.

The commissioners granted permission to the Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Company to block off Walnut Street in that community during the evening hours July 22 through July 27 to hold a street carnival and bazar.

Harry T. Skelly, roads supervisor, reported that the Pack Horse Road had been sprayed for dust control.

Mrs. Alvin T. Nave, Potomac Park, appeared before the board to ask that something be done about repairs and settling dust on Avenue F. The board referred the matter to Skelly for investigation.

Three ABL Employes To Be Transferred

The transfer of three employes at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory to other Hercules Powder Company plants has been announced.

Porter F. Samples was assigned to the firm's Rocky Hill, N. J., plant; James D. Langseth to Radford, Va., and Charles H. Scott to Bacchus, Utah.

Shoring Up The Capitol Dome

As regularly as a new federal budget—or so it seems—the Capitol architect appears before Congressional committees to inform the lawmakers that unless millions of dollars of new appropriatons are forthcoming, a section of the Capitol building in Washington will remain in imminent danger of collapse.

Chief Architect J. George Stewart testified before the House Appropriations Committee that the west face of the Capitol (the rear wall of the center section) is now in such a state of disrepair. The 136-year-old wall, of brown sandstone on a foundation of bluestone rubble, was put together without mortar, timber or steel supports.

More than $23 million has just been spent to reinforce and practically rebuild the front wall of the building. The eight-million pound iron dome which has adorned the roof of the center section since the Civil War now has good support from three sides, but the west wall continues to sag, split and crack.

Compounding the weight problem of the immense dome is its tendency to shift its weight as the sun expands the hundreds of metal plates first on one side and then on the other. Mr. Stewart estimates $20 million more will be required to give the wall the safety overhaul it needs.

Congress has little choice but to go ahead with the repairs, and it will probably spend less time in authorizing the latest $20 million overhaul than the Congress of 1847 took to authorize conversion from candlelight and oil lamps to gas or the Congress of 1857 did in arguing the merits of replacing the wooden dome with a new one of cast iron.

The gas conversion project cost $17,500. Times do change, especially in the Capitol.

These Days

Railroad That Stands Alone

If or when there is a railroad strike over the featherbedding issue, there will be one large island of relative peace in the U.S. rail transportation industry. It will be on the extensive system of the Southern Railway, which serves practically all of Dixie south of the Ohio and Potomac rivers and east of the Mississippi.

The Southern, which assured itself a good measure of safety against the ravages of "industry-wide bargaining" by withdrawing from a national conference committee back in 1960, employs 18,000 people. In dealing with the five big railroad labor unions it has followed a policy of "one bite of the apple at a time." The present feeling of its president, D. W. Brosnan, is that the firemen's issue is the only one of transcendent importance to the Southern—so, accordingly, the railroad has published no notice affecting the employment conditions of engineers, conductors and switchmen. As for its argument with the firemen over the problem of their "featherbedding" on locomotives that have no fires to stoke, the Southern has reached an agreement that promises a solution through attrition. Every fireman now employed by the Southern has been guaranteed a job to natural retirement age. But the railroad has served notice that it will not hire any new firemen to replace those who die, or quit work, or are pensioned because of age, sickness or injury.

Last winter the Southern was indeed threatened with a strike for refusing to hire new men who are not needed for work that does not exist. The threat came from outside the Southern system, from the national firemen's organization. But an injunction kept the dispute from coming to a head—and if or when the Southern is ever "struck," it will have no connection with the troubles that are scheduled to go before Congress for "stand and deliver" solution.

Part of what might be called the single blessedness of the Southern system is the fact that its present employment of firemen and other technologically obsolescent workers does not constitute the drain on its finances that similar employment compels the railroads of the northeast to accept. But if special circumstances are to be considered when it comes to pushing labor policy differences to the brink of a strike, certain railroads of the northeast should be excepted from a strike call along with the Southern. It makes no sense from anybody's standpoint, whether of management or the unions, to deal with a fragmented problem monolithically.

Take the New Haven Railroad, for example. This road, which feeds commuters into New York City and Boston and forwards a good deal of freight into New England from the West, has been in bankruptcy for a couple of years. According to recent estimates, its precarious cash position would enable it to survive for some 12 days more or less in case of a strike.

After that: blotto from an empty cash register—unless the federal government or the states of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts cared to take over the property. A strike on the New Haven could very well result in the firemen having no jobs to return to even in case the unions were to win a victory nationally. Viewed from this angle, what is the sense of including the New Haven system in any strike call? True enough, the New Haven might founder from lack of general business if no freight were being forwarded to it from a strike-bound West. But the unfortunate New Haven system is entitled to whatever chance of survival it might gain in being exempted from "industry-wide bargaining."

To give railroad management its due generally, it has done its best to live up to its duty to sit down and bargain collectively over the solution of the featherbedding issue. It has been willing to "accept the bitter with the sweet" in the recommendations of Judge Simon Rifkind's Commission that 27,000 firemen with 10 or more years' seniority should be kept on the job until death or natural retirement age, and that the 13,000 firemen with less than 10 years' service should be "phased out" with at least three months' notice plus a provision for re-training and preferential rehiring for other jobs.

The Rifkind Commission's proposal for handling the issue of featherbedding on diesel locomotives is slightly more drastic than the provision made by the Southern Railroad for its firemen. But considering the financial problems of the generality of the railroads, the Commission's approach to the problem has been gentleness itself. If the business comes to compulsory arbitration or government seizure of the railroads, the firemen can hardly hope for anything better than has already been suggested. So why force the issue to the point of arbitrary federal action? It makes no sense for anybody, labor included

'Well—Hello'

USIA Needs Extra Money To Tell American Story In Other Lands

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Edward R. Murrow, whom the public used to hear or see nightly on radio and television, has been out of the public view for about two years. Reason: he took a cut from around $250,000 a year to around $20,000 a year to run the very important but thankless job of informing the world about U. S. operations through the Voice of America and the U.S. Information Agency.

The other day, Murrow took his first vacation, went up to his farm in Pawling, N. Y., to operate a bulldozer.

"There is nothing that gives you such a false sense of power," he confided before he left, "as running a bulldozer."

In Washington, Murrow doesn't have any false sense of power. Despite the power and glamor of his old television career, Murrow knows that today he is completely powerless before the appropriations committees of Congress. And this year he has run athwart the powerful pruners of the House, headed by No. 1 pruner, likable John Rooney of Brooklyn.

When Murrow asked for $3,000,000 extra to tell the story of U.S. achievements to the world on television, he was made to feel about as powerless as an old stump in front of his own bulldozer.

It happens that a score or more of new countries in Africa and Asia, plus some older countries in Latin America, have built new TV stations and suddenly find themselves with no programs. They are desperate for films to fill the vacuum. Murrow wants to feed their hungry program managers with the filmed story of U. S. accomplishment.

"We have a great story to tell," Murrow told the Congressmen. "We got criticized all over the world for Little Rock. Now we need to tell the story of success at Little Rock, and at Clinton, Tenn., and various other places. Either we go forward with the story of the greatest race progress in history or we let other countries tell the adverse, unfair story against us."

Last year over 500 USIA programs were shown over TV stations in 61 countries, and this could probably be doubled. However, the House Appropriations Committee so far has said no.

Catholics On Civil Rights

Bishop John J. Russell of Richmond, Va., will urge all Roman Catholics of Virginia to actively support full civil rights for Negroes in a pastoral letter to be read at masses in his diocese on Sunday, July 21.

The white-thatched prelate, heretofore considered a moderate on racial issues, will declare:

"A Catholic cannot fail to recognize the right of the Negro people to secure proper housing, equal opportunity for work, full participation in educational facilities, both public and private, and the right to equal accommodation both on public property and within those (private) enterprises licensed and protected by the state for the service of the general public.

"In this crisis we must apply Christian principles to present conditions and, in our daily living, practice what Christ teaches through his church. Let us . . . intensify and make real our love of neighbor for the love of God."

The sweeping pastoral letter will cite St. John's doctrine: "If anyone says 'I love God' and hates his brother, he is a liar. For how can he who does not love his brother, whom he sees, love God, Whom he does not see?"

Dillon Is Too Naive

Doug Dillon, the nice, naive Republican Secretary of the Treasury who is loyal to Kennedy, slipped up the other day in his loyalty. He didn't mean to. He just doesn't understand politics. But as a result of his slip, the Export-Import Bank, which has been promoting American exports abroad for thirty years, has now ceased to function. It's a blow to our balance of payments problem and to American businessmen whom Dillon has lived with and loaned money to during most of his Wall Street banking days.

What happened was that the Ex-Im Bank has always operated by drawing funds from the Treasury, within limits, authorized by Congress—a system used ever since the founding of the first Bank of the United States in 1781. It has not been necessary to get specific appropriations from Congress.

But of late, Republicans and Southern Democrats have claimed this is backdoor spending. They want the Ex-Im bank to get specific appropriations OK'd by the House Appropriations Committee. This is reported to be not so much the idea of Chairman Clarence Cannon, who represents the Mark Twain district of Missouri and has had a great record in the past, but rather of Rep. Albert Thomas of Houston, who seems to be looking forward to the day when Clarence bows out.

The House Banking and Currency Committee disagrees with this, favors the traditional system of drawing funds from the Treasury. But suddenly it found that Kennedy's Secretary of the Treasury had pulled the rug right out from under them. Dillon had appeared in secret before the Appropriations Committee and naively indicated it would make no difference if the Ex-Im Bank went under the jurisdiction of the Appropriations Committee.

As a result, the House of Representatives has voted 110 to 0 to turn the bank over to the House Appropriations Committee, which will parcel out the money as it sees fit. The Senate meanwhile is equally adamant that this will not happen. It has voted 73 to 1 that this is an unconstitutional grab for power by the House.

And the Ex-Im Bank, caught in a bind between the two, just isn't functioning. It has no money to lend and part of the stream of American exports has been shut off.

Legal Problems Of 'Integrated' Immorality

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The doctrine of "equal rights" is about to give the Supreme Court of the United States one of the toughest cases it has ever had to decide. It may be unpleasant to read about — though perhaps not as lurid as the British sex scandals — but the evolution of constitutional law is so important nowadays that the principles involved cannot be ignored in a free press.

The case in question was decided just a few weeks ago by a unanimous opinion of the seven judges of the Supreme Court of the state of Florida. It dealt with a state law which prescribes a moderate punishment when the crime of adultery has been committed by two white persons or by two Negro persons. Another provision of the same law, however, provides a much more severe punishment when the crime involves acts of one Negro and one white person together. In other words, the "integration" is punished much more severely than when the races are completely separated.

On the surface, this would appear to be a plain case of discrimination against integration as such. The Supreme Court of the state of Florida, however, took an entirely different view and sarcastically made reference to the probability that its decision would be overruled by the Supreme Court of the United States.

The case by the Florida Supreme Court was decided on May 1, 1963, and a rehearing was denied on May 30, 1963. So the only chance for reversal lies in the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Florida State Supreme Court in its opinion said:

"The appellants seek adjudication of their right to engage in integrated illicit cohabitation upon the same terms as are imposed upon the segregated lapse. But, as was admitted by counsel in argument, this appeal is a mere way station on the route to the United States Supreme Court where defendants hope that, in the light of supposed social and political advances, they may find legal endorsement of their ambitions.

"This court is obligated by the sound rule of stare decisis and the precedent of the well written decision in pace, supra. The Federal Constitution, as it was when construed by the United States Supreme Court in that case, is quite adequate but if the newfound concept of 'social justice' has out-dated 'the law of the land' as therein announced and, by way of consequence, some new law is necessary, it must be enacted by legislative process or some other court must write it."

The decision which was relied on by the high court of Florida was rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States in 1883 and has never been reversed. In that case — Pace V. Alabama — the Supreme Court upheld an Alabama law which prohibits interracial marriage or adultery, and declined to rule that there was not "equal protection of the law" when a more severe penalty was imposed in the case of misbehavior by a mixed couple than for the same offense when committed by persons of the same race. The Supreme Court of the United States, in discussing the two provisions of the Alabama laws, said:

"The two sections of the code cited are entirely consistent. The one prescribes, generally, a punishment for an offense committed between persons of different sexes; the other prescribes punishment for an offense which can only be committed where the two sexes are of different races. There is in neither section any discrimination against either race. . . .

"Whatever discrimination is made in the punishment prescribed in the two sections is directed against the offense designated and not against the person of any particular color or race. The punishment of each offending person, whether white or black, is the same."

It is clear, however, that the laws of the state of Alabama and of the state of Florida still make distinctions between the two kinds of offenses, and these distinctions are based upon race. This is the main reason why the case will doubtless be a perplexing one for the highest court in the land. While, on the one hand, punishments are equally applied to a white and a colored person, the fact remains that the statutes make a distinction between the two races. This, according to current decisions of the Supreme Court, is a violation of the letter and the spirit of the Fourteenth Amendment.

All these problems may seem technical, but they will come up for consideration again and again, especially if the mythical dwelling known as "Mrs. Murphy's boarding house" now should be subject to a federal "civil rights" law passed by Congress. In recent discussions of the proposed legislation dealing with "civil rights" in hotels and rooming houses, a Senator who favors such laws remarked:

"The important thing is to see to it that the Negro is able to eat with the white and to sleep in whites' motels and hotels without being discriminated against because of his race."

Inside Washington

KID STUFF — Rep. Carlton Sickles of Maryland has a small box on his desk marked, "Lollipops for Good Little Girls and Boys." He finds he gets a lot of mileage with his visiting constituents by pleasing their accompanying young'uns. One day, a young boy from a neighboring congressman's office sauntered into Sickles' office jauntily and remarked, "I heard you had some suckers in here."

BUDDHIST PROBLEM — The adage that you can find anything in the federal government if you look hard enough has been proved once again.

The White House got concerned over the uprising of Vietnamese Buddhists against the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem, whom the U. S. government supports. In order to understand better what was going on there, White House officials decided to get acquainted with the situation, including the subject of Buddhism.

As the government literally ransacked its dusty shelves, it turned up a foot-thick report on Buddhism compiled during the Eisenhower administration. The report contained the name of the top Buddhist in the U. S. government, one Richard Gard, an employe of the United States Information Agency.

Officials put out a hurry call for Gard, and struck it lucky. Gard was just about to leave for an assignment in the Philippines.

Gard, who is a vice president of the World Buddhist Congress, missed out on the Pacific assignment. He's currently shuttling between the USIA and the State Department, where he's acting as an advisor to the Viet Nam working group.

Next problem, please?

The Painter's Estate

NICE

The fashion now is for artists to have their own museums, started and contributed to by themselves or their families. There are a lot of these museums right around here. Picasso has started his own museum in Grimaldi Palace in old Antibes. Three years ago the Fernand Leger Museum was opened by his widow at Biot. Renoir's house up along the Haut de Cagnes has been turned into a museum. Last winter, the Matisse Museum opened in the heights above Nice, where he lived and painted for so many years. The museum is operated by the city of Nice and contains paintings given by Matisse and by his son, Pierre Matisse, the art dealer.

The other day with Pierre Matisse I drove up through the steeply-ascending utterly lovely back streets of Nice to the museum, situated in an enchanting seventeenth century house right across the street from the imposing white Victorian pile of stone known as the Regine Hotel where Queen Victoria liked to stay and where Matisse lived for years.

It swings, that museum. If I were an artist and somebody established a posthumous museum of my work, this is the kind of museum I would like. Pierre Matisse and I got out of the car and walked across the street. We found a workman setting up lights and working on a stage set up in an ancient Roman amphitheater which had recently been excavated.

The stage was full of modern lighting equipment and on a stand at the stage I found one of those most twentieth century gadgets, a television monitor screen. "What do they perform here?" I asked. "Shakespeare," said Matisse.

Shakespeare in a Roman amphitheater at the gates of the museum of one of the most important French modern masters. It's wild. Outside the amphitheater were green paths and lawns and there a French father and son were throwing a ball. Mothers were trundling small children in strollers and a couple of French boys were playing badminton. The laws of the museum are full of life.

The Matisse Museum is set right in the middle of an important archaeological find—the biggest Roman baths ever discovered in France, possibly the biggest ever found outside Rome. They're still digging but the outlines are formidable. You can see the old steam rooms, the cold bath rooms, the hot rooms. A lot of art has been found there, including huge statues in very good condition.

Inside the museum on the ground floor on one side are Greek antiquities—God knows why—but this is a swinging place. On the other, Roman antiquities. Matisse starts upstairs and in the first room you find a life-sized (which is to say, enormous) sketch for his cloaked figure at the Matisse Chapel in nearby Vence, a simple sculpturesque, deeply moving figure. Inside are the sketches Matisse did for this figure, in themselves almost a lesson in modern art. The first sketches are full of details of cloak and body. Matisse finished his figure by eliminating, eliminating, eliminating, until nothing is left but the essence of the figure sketched in a few bold, very strong lines.

"He always did a drawing first, very complete, very precise, very detailed," said Pierre Matisse. "After he felt he had possessed his subject, then he felt equipped so that he worked directly on the tiles. Then he worked very swiftly because the paint dried rapidly and the tiles had to be fired."

The next room is lined with sketches, paintings, abstracts, the method seems madness, but it's enormously dramatic. "Instead of putting one year next to another, we mixed them up," said Pierre Matisse. "That way you can compare works 20 years apart. The contrast is much better."

Certainly is. You find paintings made in his Beaux Arts student days in 1897 cheek by jowl with some of his most characteristic odalisques painted in 1912. Nearby, there are drawings done in 1924, quite explicit, full of chiaroscuro shadings. A few feet away, a drawing done in 1947, near the end of his life, a girl, hand on hip, done with a single line.

"This is my father's first painting," said Pierre Matisse. It's a tiny painting, black, gray, brown, of some books and an inkwell. Matisse painted it in 1890 when he was 20 years old.

As you go through the museum, the lines get simpler, the colors—the blues and oranges and reds—get purer; even the subjects get simpler, groping back to the very essence of things—leaves, flowers, shapes. There is a corner given over to his palettes and a glass case full of the objects he loved to paint in his house. There's a Moorish table that must have been in dozens of his paintings. "That pewter mug I remember ever since I can remember anything," said the artist's son.

"Also that little coffee pot. This is his last work—unfinished," said Pierre Matisse. It's enormous. Pierre Matisse paced off nine steps—roughly 27 feet long, probably 15 eet high— and consisting of huge cutouts of orange and green paper in the shape of flowers and fruits and interesting shapes, all arranged in geometric patterns.

I couldn't help think that it looked like the sort of thing a sick child would do to keep himself occupied. Not on that scale, perhaps, but the same shapes and bright pure colors, pasting paper on paper. Matisse did it when he was 84.

No Standard Pattern For Arteriosclerosis

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

Arteriosclerosis probably is our most prevalent disease. It begins early in life but, like a rusty pipe, seldom causes trouble until the passageway becomes obstructed. When the blood flow is impaired, symptoms stem from the organ that is robbed of circulation and not from the artery itself.

A variety of factors influence the development of arteriosclerosis, ranging from heredity to diet. Those who want to escape the condition should start with a set of long-lived grandparents. It helps also to avoid gluttony and to live moderately and with a minimum of stress and emotional upheavals. Don't be concerned about cholesterol unless a blood test shows a high concentration of this substance in the serum.

Many pains and other discomforts are attributed to arteriosclerosis but there is no standard pattern. An older person with leg cramps may have poor circulation but when a younger individual complains of the same thing, another cause is more likely. Overstretching or injury to a leg muscle is a good possibility, regardless of age. This is mentioned because it is easy to blame hardening of the arteries for anything adverse that occurs after age 60.

The same applies to headache, impairment of memory, weakness, palpitation, aching, shortness of breath while walking upstairs, indigestion, and a sallow complexion. On the other hand, symptoms are more definite when the circulation to certain organs is impaired. When the leg arteries are affected, the man or woman experiences coldness and pain in one or both feet.

Angina pectoris or coronary thrombosis occurs if the blood flow to the heart muscle is reduced or shut off. There is a burning, squeezing, or choking pain beneath the breastbone that may or may not radiate into the neck and arms. Little or big strokes may follow hardening of the brain arteries. Disorders in vision and hearing ensue when circulation to the eyes or ears is disturbed.

Arteriosclerosis is not as hopeless as we have been led to believe. We have no chemical to prevent the process or clear out the obstructing material, despite some claim to the contrary. But drugs are available to encourage the growth of new vessels that will take over the work of the old. In addition, plastic arteries can be inserted to bypass an obstructed segment.

Cassius Marcellus Clay, the most articulate if not yet the most accomplished heavyweight boxer of his time, had the audacity to tell Champion Sonny Liston recently to his face, "You ain't so hot." Liston replied, "I could leave both legs at home and beat you." Time will tell. Meanwhile, Clay writes poetry, plays up to the crowds, and tootles around the country in a tomato-red luxury car. When he becomes champion, he promises, he will resume his real personality, and seek a mate who "just loves me for what I am."

Clay has a genuine sense of humor. He attended one bout where the favorite failed to land one solid punch for eight rounds. Before the ninth round started, Clay shouted to him, "Don't quit now, boy! You've got a no-hitter going!"

A man who had been squeezed out of the retail book business by cut-rate operators and such-like secured the local agency for a well-known brand of vacuum cleaners. His very first prospect was a skeptical housewife who asked, "Are you sure that contraption will gather up every speck of dirt?" "Lady," the ex-bookseller assured her, "I ran this cleaner lightly over a copy of "The Tropic of Cancer" and when I finished, it was Louisa Alcott's "Little Women'!"

Shoring Up The Capitol Dome

As regularly as a new federal budget—or so it seems—the Capitol architect appears before Congressional committees to inform the lawmakers that unless millions of dollars of new appropriatons are forthcoming, a section of the Capitol building in Washington will remain in imminent danger of collapse.

Chief Architect J. George Stewart testified before the House Appropriations Committee that the west face of the Capitol (the rear wall of the center section) is now in such a state of disrepair. The 136-year-old wall, of brown sandstone on a foundation of bluestone rubble, was put together without mortar, timber or steel supports.

More than $23 million has just been spent to reinforce and practically rebuild the front wall of the building. The eight-million pound iron dome which has adorned the roof of the center section since the Civil War now has good support from three sides, but the west wall continues to sag, split and crack.

Compounding the weight problem of the immense dome is its tendency to shift its weight as the sun expands the hundreds of metal plates first on one side and then on the other. Mr. Stewart estimates $20 million more will be required to give the wall the safety overhaul it needs.

Congress has little choice but to go ahead with the repairs, and it will probably spend less time in authorizing the latest $20 million overhaul than the Congress of 1847 took to authorize conversion from candlelight and oil lamps to gas or the Congress of 1857 did in arguing the merits of replacing the wooden dome with a new one of cast iron.

The gas conversion project cost $17,500. Times do change, especially in the Capitol.

Railroad That Stands Alone

If or when there is a railroad strike over the featherbedding issue, there will be one large island of relative peace in the U.S. rail transportation industry. It will be on the extensive system of the Southern Railway, which serves practically all of Dixie south of the Ohio and Potomac rivers and east of the Mississippi.

The Southern, which assured itself a good measure of safety against the ravages of "industry-wide bargaining" by withdrawing from a national conference committee back in 1960, employs 18,000 people. In dealing with the five big railroad labor unions it has followed a policy of "one bite of the apple at a time." The present feeling of its president, D. W. Brosnan, is that the firemen's issue is the only one of transcendent importance to the Southern—so, accordingly, the railroad has published no notice affecting the employment conditions of engineers, conductors and switchmen. As for its argument with the firemen over the problem of their "featherbedding" on locomotives that have no fires to stoke, the Southern has reached an agreement that promises a solution through attrition. Every fireman now employed by the Southern has been guaranteed a job to natural retirement age. But the railroad has served notice that it will not hire any new firemen to replace those who die, or quit work, or are pensioned because of age, sickness or injury.

Last winter the Southern was indeed threatened with a strike for refusing to hire new men who are not needed for work that does not exist. The threat came from outside the Southern system, from the national firemen's organization. But an injunction kept the dispute from coming to a head—and if or when the Southern is ever "struck," it will have no connection with the troubles that are scheduled to go before Congress for "stand and deliver" solution.

Part of what might be called the single blessedness of the Southern system is the fact that its present employment of firemen and other technologically obsolescent workers does not constitute the drain on its finances that similar employment compels the railroads of the northeast to accept. But if special circumstances are to be considered when it comes to pushing labor policy differences to the brink of a strike, certain railroads of the northeast should be excepted from a strike call along with the Southern. It makes no sense from anybody's standpoint, whether of management or the unions, to deal with a fragmented problem monolithically.

Take the New Haven Railroad, for example. This road, which feeds commuters into New York City and Boston and forwards a good deal of freight into New England from the West, has been in bankruptcy for a couple of years. According to recent estimates, its precarious cash position would enable it to survive for some 12 days more or less in case of a strike.

After that: blotto from an empty cash register—unless the federal government or the states of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts cared to take over the property. A strike on the New Haven could very well result in the firemen having no jobs to return to even in case the unions were to win a victory nationally. Viewed from this angle, what is the sense of including the New Haven system in any strike call? True enough, the New Haven might founder from lack of general business if no freight were being forwarded to it from a strike-bound West. But the unfortunate New Haven system is entitled to whatever chance of survival it might gain in being exempted from "industry-wide bargaining."

To give railroad management its due generally, it has done its best to live up to its duty to sit down and bargain collectively over the solution of the featherbedding issue. It has been willing to "accept the bitter with the sweet" in the recommendations of Judge Simon Rifkind's Commission that 27,000 firemen with 10 or more years' seniority should be kept on the job until death or natural retirement age, and that the 13,000 firemen with less than 10 years' service should be "phased out" with at least three months' notice plus a provision for re-training and preferential rehiring for other jobs.

The Rifkind Commission's proposal for handling the issue of featherbedding on diesel locomotives is slightly more drastic than the provision made by the Southern Railroad for its firemen. But considering the financial problems of the generality of the railroads, the Commission's approach to the problem has been gentleness itself. If the business comes to compulsory arbitration or government seizure of the railroads, the firemen can hardly hope for anything better than has already been suggested. So why force the issue to the point of arbitrary federal action? It makes no sense for anybody, labor included

Legal Problems Of 'Integrated' Immorality

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The doctrine of "equal rights" is about to give the Supreme Court of the United States one of the toughest cases it has ever had to decide. It may be unpleasant to read about — though perhaps not as lurid as the British sex scandals — but the evolution of constitutional law is so important nowadays that the principles involved cannot be ignored in a free press.

The case in question was decided just a few weeks ago by a unanimous opinion of the seven judges of the Supreme Court of the state of Florida. It dealt with a state law which prescribes a moderate punishment when the crime of adultery has been committed by two white persons or by two Negro persons. Another provision of the same law, however, provides a much more severe punishment when the crime involves acts of one Negro and one white person together. In other words, the "integration" is punished much more severely than when the races are completely separated.

On the surface, this would appear to be a plain case of discrimination against integration as such. The Supreme Court of the state of Florida, however, took an entirely different view and sarcastically made reference to the probability that its decision would be overruled by the Supreme Court of the United States.

The case by the Florida Supreme Court was decided on May 1, 1963, and a rehearing was denied on May 30, 1963. So the only chance for reversal lies in the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Florida State Supreme Court in its opinion said:

"The appellants seek adjudication of their right to engage in integrated illicit cohabitation upon the same terms as are imposed upon the segregated lapse. But, as was admitted by counsel in argument, this appeal is a mere way station on the route to the United States Supreme Court where defendants hope that, in the light of supposed social and political advances, they may find legal endorsement of their ambitions.

"This court is obligated by the sound rule of stare decisis and the precedent of the well written decision in pace, supra. The Federal Constitution, as it was when construed by the United States Supreme Court in that case, is quite adequate but if the new-found concept of 'social justice' has out-dated 'the law of the land' as therein announced and, by way of consequence, some new law is necessary, it must be enacted by legislative process or some other court must write it."

The decision which was relied on by the high court of Florida was rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States in 1883 and has never been reversed. In that case — Pace V. Alabama — the Supreme Court upheld an Alabama law which prohibits interracial marriage or adultery, and declined to rule that there was not "equal protection of the law" when a more severe penalty was imposed in the case of misbehavior by a mixed couple than for the same offense when committed by persons of the same race. The Supreme Court of the United States, in discussing the two provisions of the Alabama laws, said:

"The two sections of the code cited are entirely consistent. The one prescribes, generally, a punishment for an offense committed between persons of different sexes; the other prescribes punishment for an offense which can only be committed where the two sexes are of different races. There is in neither section any discrimination against either race. . . .

"Whatever discrimination is made in the punishment prescribed in the two sections is directed against the offense designated and not against the person of any particular color or race. The punishment of each offending person, whether white or black, is the same."

It is clear, however, that the laws of the state of Alabama and of the state of Florida still make distinctions between the two kinds of offenses, and these distinctions are based upon race. This is the main reason why the case will doubtless be a perplexing one for the highest court in the land. While, on the one hand, punishments are equally applied to a white and a colored person, the fact remains that the statutes make a distinction between the two races. This, according to current decisions of the Supreme Court, is a violation of the letter and the spirit of the Fourteenth Amendment.

All these problems may seem technical, but they will come up for consideration again and again, especially if the mythical dwelling known as "Mrs. Murphy's boarding house" now should be subject to a federal "civil rights" law passed by Congress. In recent discussions of the proposed legislation dealing with "civil rights" in hotels and rooming houses, a Senator who favors such laws remarked:

"The important thing is to see to it that the Negro is able to eat with the white and to sleep in whites' motels and hotels without being discriminated against because of his race."

Inside Washington

KID STUFF — Rep. Carlton Sickles of Maryland has a small box on his desk marked, "Lollipops for Good Little Girls and Boys." He finds he gets a lot of mileage with his visiting constituents by pleasing their accompanying young'uns. One day, a young boy from a neighboring congressman's office sauntered into Sickles' office jauntily and remarked, "I heard you had some suckers in here."

BUDDHIST PROBLEM — The adage that you can find anything in the federal government if you look hard enough has been proved once again.

The White House got concerned over the uprising of Vietnamese Buddhists against the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem, whom the U. S. government supports. In order to understand better what was going on there, White House officials decided to get acquainted with the situation, including the subject of Buddhism.

As the government literally ransacked its dusty shelves, it turned up a foot-thick report on Buddhism compiled during the Eisenhower administration. The report contained the name of the top Buddhist in the U. S. government, one Richard Gard, an employe of the United States Information Agency.

Officials put out a hurry call for Gard, and struck it lucky. Gard was just about to leave for an assignment in the Philippines.

Gard, who is a vice president of the World Buddhist Congress, missed out on the Pacific assignment. He's currently shuttling between the USIA and the State Department, where he's acting as an advisor to the Viet Nam working group.

USIA Needs Extra Money To Tell American Story In Other Lands

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Edward R. Murrow, whom the public used to hear or see nightly on radio and television, has been out of the public view for about two years. Reason: he took a cut from around $250,000 a year to around $20,000 a year to run the very important but thankless job of informing the world about U. S. operations through the Voice of America and the U.S. Information Agency.

The other day, Murrow took his first vacation, went up to his farm in Pawling, N. Y., to operate a bulldozer.

"There is nothing that gives you such a false sense of power," he confided before he left, "as running a bulldozer."

In Washington, Murrow doesn't have any false sense of power. Despite the power and glamor of his old television career, Murrow knows that today he is completely powerless before the appropriations committees of Congress. And this year he has run athwart the powerful pruners of the House, headed by No. 1 pruner, likable John Rooney of Brooklyn.

When Murrow asked for $3,000,000 extra to tell the story of U.S. achievements to the world on television, he was made to feel about as powerless as an old stump in front of his own bulldozer.

It happens that a score or more of new countries in Africa and Asia, plus some older countries in Latin America, have built new TV stations and suddenly find themselves with no programs. They are desperate for films to fill the vacuum. Murrow wants to feed their hungry program managers with the filmed story of U. S. accomplishment.

"We have a great story to tell," Murrow told the Congressmen. "We got criticized all over the world for Little Rock. Now we need to tell the story of success at Little Rock, and at Clinton, Tenn., and various other places. Either we go forward with the story of the greatest race progress in history or we let other countries tell the adverse, unfair story against us."

Last year over 500 USIA programs were shown over TV stations in 61 countries, and this could probably be doubled. However, the House Appropriations Committee so far has said no.

Catholics On Civil Rights

Bishop John J. Russell of Richmond, Va., will urge all Roman Catholics of Virginia to actively support full civil rights for Negroes in a pastoral letter to be read at masses in his diocese on Sunday, July 21.

The white-thatched prelate, heretofore considered a moderate on racial issues, will declare:

"A Catholic cannot fail to recognize the right of the Negro people to secure proper housing, equal opportunity for work, full participation in educational facilities, both public and private, and the right to equal accommodation both on public property and within those (private) enterprises licensed and protected by the state for the service of the general public.

"In this crisis we must apply Christian principles to present conditions and, in our daily living, practice what Christ teaches through his church. Let us . . . intensify and make real our love of neighbor for the love of God."

The sweeping pastoral letter will cite St. John's doctrine: "If anyone says 'I love God' and hates his brother, he is a liar. For how can he who does not love his brother, whom he sees, love God, Whom he does not see?"

Dillon Is Too Naive

Doug Dillon, the nice, naive Republican Secretary of the Treasury who is loyal to Kennedy, slipped up the other day in his loyalty. He didn't mean to. He just doesn't understand politics. But as a result of his slip, the Export-Import Bank, which has been promoting American exports abroad for thirty years, has now ceased to function. It's a blow to our balance of payments problem and to American businessmen whom Dillon has lived with and loaned money to during most of his Wall Street banking days.

What happened was that the Ex-Im Bank has always operated by drawing funds from the Treasury, within limits, authorized by Congress—a system used ever since the founding of the first Bank of the United States in 1781. It has not been necessary to get specific appropriations from Congress.

But of late, Republicans and Southern Democrats have claimed this is backdoor spending. They want the Ex-Im bank to get specific appropriations OK'd by the House Appropriations Committee. This is reported to be not so much the idea of Chairman Clarence Cannon, who represents the Mark Twain district of Missouri and has had a great record in the past, but rather of Rep. Albert Thomas of Houston, who seems to be looking forward to the day when Clarence bows out.

The House Banking and Currency Committee disagrees with this, favors the traditional system of drawing funds from the Treasury. But suddenly it found that Kennedy's Secretary of the Treasury had pulled the rug right out from under them. Dillon had appeared in secret before the Appropriations Committee and naively indicated it would make no difference if the Ex-Im Bank went under the jurisdiction of the Appropriations Committee.

As a result, the House of Representatives has voted 110 to 0 to turn the bank over to the House Appropriations Committee, which will parcel out the money as it sees fit. The Senate meanwhile is equally adamant that this will not happen. It has voted 73 to 1 that this is an unconstitutional grab for power by the House.

And the Ex-Im Bank, caught in a bind between the two, just isn't functioning. It has no money to lend and part of the stream of American exports has been shut off.

The Painter's Estate

NICE

The fashion now is for artists to have their own museums, started and contributed to by themselves or their families. There are a lot of these museums right around here. Picasso has started his own museum in Grimaldi Palace in old Antibes. Three years ago the Fernand Leger Museum was opened by his widow at Biot. Renoir's house up along the Haut de Cagnes has been turned into a museum. Last winter, the Matisse Museum opened in the heights above Nice, where he lived and painted for so many years. The museum is operated by the city of Nice and contains paintings given by Matisse and by his son, Pierre Matisse, the art dealer.

The other day with Pierre Matisse I drove up through the steeply-ascending utterly lovely back streets of Nice to the museum, situated in an enchanting seventeenth century house right across the street from the imposing white Victorian pile of stone known as the Regine Hotel where Queen Victoria liked to stay and where Matisse lived for years.

It swings, that museum. If I were an artist and somebody established a posthumous museum of my work, this is the kind of museum I would like. Pierre Matisse and I got out of the car and walked across the street. We found a workman setting up lights and working on a stage set up in an ancient Roman amphitheater which had recently been excavated.

The stage was full of modern lighting equipment and on a stand at the stage I found one of those most twentieth century gadgets, a television monitor screen. "What do they perform here?" I asked. "Shakespeare," said Matisse.

Shakespeare in a Roman amphitheater at the gates of the museum of one of the most important French modern masters. It's wild. Outside the amphitheater were green paths and lawns and there a French father and son were throwing a ball. Mothers were trundling small children in strollers and a couple of French boys were playing badminton. The laws of the museum are full of life.

The Matisse Museum is set right in the middle of an important archaeological find—the biggest Roman baths ever discovered in France, possibly the biggest ever found outside Rome. They're still digging but the outlines are formidable. You can see the old steam rooms, the cold bath rooms, the hot rooms. A lot of art has been found there, including huge statues in very good condition.

Inside the museum on the ground floor on one side are Greek antiquities—God knows why—but this is a swinging place. On the other, Roman antiquities. Matisse starts upstairs and in the first room you find a life-sized (which is to say, enormous) sketch for his cloaked figure at the Matisse Chapel in nearby Vence, a simple sculpturesque, deeply moving figure. Inside are the sketches Matisse did for this figure, in themselves almost a lesson in modern art. The first sketches are full of details of cloak and body. Matisse finished his figure by eliminating, eliminating, eliminating, until nothing is left but the essence of the figure sketched in a few bold, very strong lines.

"He always did a drawing first, very complete, very precise, very detailed," said Pierre Matisse. "After he felt he had possessed his subject, then he felt equipped so that he worked directly on the tiles. Then he worked very swiftly because the paint dried rapidly and the tiles had to be fired."

The next room is lined with sketches, paintings, abstracts, the method seems madness, but it's enormously dramatic. "Instead of putting one year next to another, we mixed them up," said Pierre Matisse. "That way you can compare works 20 years apart. The contrast is much better."

Certainly is. You find paintings made in his Beaux Arts student days in 1897 cheek by jowl with some of his most characteristic odalisques painted in 1912. Nearby, there are drawings done in 1924, quite explicit, full of chiaroscuro shadings. A few feet away, a drawing done in 1947, near the end of his life, a girl, hand on hip, done with a single line.

"This is my father's first painting," said Pierre Matisse. It's a tiny painting, black, gray, brown, of some books and an inkwell. Matisse painted it in 1890 when he was 20 years old.

As you go through the museum, the lines get simpler, the colors—the blues and oranges and reds—get purer; even the subjects get simpler, groping back to the very essence of things—leaves, flowers, shapes. There is a corner given over to his palettes and a glass case full of the objects he loved to paint in his house. There's a Moorish table that must have been in dozens of his paintings. "That pewter mug I remember ever since I can remember anything," said the artist's son.

"Also that little coffee pot. This is his last work—unfinished," said Pierre Matisse. It's enormous. Pierre Matisse paced off nine steps—roughly 27 feet long, probably 15 eet high— and consisting of huge cutouts of orange and green paper in the shape of flowers and fruits and interesting shapes, all arranged in geometric patterns.

I couldn't help think that it looked like the sort of thing a sick child would do to keep himself occupied. Not on that scale, perhaps, but the same shapes and bright pure colors, pasting paper on paper. Matisse did it when he was 84.

Garrett National Bank Is Opening Accident Branch

Ceremonies Begin Today At 11 A.M.

OAKLAND — The newly-constructed Accident Branch of The Garrett National Bank will be formally opened during public ceremonies today beginning at 11 a. m.

Mayor John Brenneman of Accident will make the first deposit and extend a welcome to the Garrett National through its president, Floyd B. Leighton.

During the day informal interviews will be conducted with visitors and the staff of the bank. Wesley Schaible, executive to all visitors and a television set and bicycle will be awarded at 5 p.m.

Harold J. Kahl has been appointed manager of the new branch office. Mrs. Guy Broadwater has been appointed teller. They are both residents of the Accident area. Mr. Kahl has been employed by Garrett National for three years and Mrs. Broadwater was recently employed at the Oakland office.

Dick Hart Continues To Lead PGA Tourney With 4-Under-Par 138

Mayfield, Lema, Boros Trail By Three Strokes

Three Quit Because Of Heat; Nicklaus Has 142, Palmer 147

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

DALLAS (UPI) — Jut-jawed Dick Hart, the young guy from nowhere, refused to wilt to Texas heat, rigid par or big time pressure Friday as he fired a one over par 37-35—72 to cling tenaciously to the second round lead in the PGA golf championship with a four under par 138.

The slender 27-year-old from Hinsdale, Ill., a mere assistant pro, grabbed the lead in the first round with a five under par 66. But, while all the big horses were running at him in 100 degree heat and nobody expected him to withstand the assault, he calmly clung to the head end while some of golf's greatest names were dropping.

Three tour players, former U.S. Open champion Jack Fleck, Jim Ferree and Don Fairfield all had to withdraw because of the heat; Arnold Palmer shot a disgusted 73 which left him far back at 147; Jack Nicklaus also shot a 73 for 142, and the closest challengers to the unknown Hart were three of the big ones—U.S. Open champion Julius Boros, Champagne Tony Lema and Texan Shelley Mayfield.

Those three were stacked at 141, one stroke under par and three behind Hart, when Lema shot an even par 71 over the blistered Dac Course while Boros and Mayfield each posted a 72.

Doug Sanders of the telephone booth backswing shot a 69 to jump into the 143 bracket along with former U.S. Open champion Gene Littler, Aussie Bruce Crampton and Phoenix Bill Johnston. At 144, were three-time champion Sam Snead with a 73, Mason Rudolph with a 75, Dow Finsterwald with a 72, Billy Maxwell with a 71 and Bob Goalby and Dan Sikes with 70's.

Former hockey star Bill Ezinicki and British Open champion Bob Charles moved into the 145 group with Dave Ragan and Dave Hill while at 146 were Billy Farrell, Tommy Jacobs, Paul Harney, Gardner Dickinson, Jim Ferrier and Dutch Harrison.

Palmer's 73—in what he called "my most disappointing year in golf" as it looked like he might not win one of the major events despite a new money winning record — put him at 147 along with former champion Jackie Burke and Frank Stranahan.

The Big Men

The two biggest men in the field, mountainous George Bayer with a 73 and six-foot-five John Barnum with a 74, were banked at 148 while at 149 came defending champion Gary Player with a 79 and Art Wall with a 76.

All the old-timers thought that the virtually inexperienced young man from Salem, Mass., would wilt under either the heat or the pressure. But Hart played it with real heart.

It was hot on the course and hotter in the hollows but it didn't bother a gallery of 8,500 which plodded the course as if it was the middle of Indian Summer and the Red Cross tent reported that not one single case of heat exhaustion was treated.

Cardinals Trim Houston, 7-2

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals two - man offensive act — Dick Groat and Bill White—led an 11-hit assault on the lowly Houston Colts for a 7-2 victory here Friday night.

The Cards clubbed four Houston pitchers for a homer, two triples and a double to back up shut-out four-hit relief hurling by fast-baller Ron Taylor, who notched his fifth victory in nine decisions.

Taylor entered the game in the third after the Colts had nickle-and-dimed Ernie Broglio to the showers. Houston starter Dick Drott absorbed his eighth loss against two wins.

White was two for four against Houston, including his 16th homer to right center field in the first inning. He singled and scored in the fifth. Groat was three for four, including a double, an RBI and a run scored. The two participated in all but two Cardinal tallies.

Ken Boyer had a two RBI single in the fifth and Julian Javier and Gary Kolb each had triples.

Drysdale Fans 11 As Dodgers Top Braves, 4-2

Howard Wallops Pair Of Homers

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Big Don Drysdale struck out 11 while giving up six hits and burly Frank Howard slammed a pair of home runs to lead the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-2 victory over the Milwaukee Braves Friday night.

The win enabled the Dodgers to take a 7½ game lead in the National League over the second place Chicago Cubs, who were defeated by the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9-4.

Righthander Drysdale scored his 12th victory of the year in going the distance for the 11th time in 25 starts. Lefthander Bob Hendley, who was relieved for a pinch batter in the sixth, was charged with his sixth loss against five wins.

Howard needed just two pitches thrown to him to post his 14th and 15th home runs of the season, six of them against the Braves. Howard led off the second and hit Henley's first pitch over the left field wall. With two out in the fourth he again hit the first pitch, and this time the ball traveled over the left-center-field wall.

Ken McMullen's seventh inning single scored Los Angeles' two other runs. With one out, Howard had gotten on first on an error by Eddie Mathews, which ended the Milwaukee third baseman's errorless streak at 28 games. Bill Skowron's double sent Howard to third and McMullen then scored them.

Hank Aaron tagged Drysdale for his 27th home run of the year when he led off the two-run seventh for the Braves. Lee Maye then drew the only walk off Drysdale and went to second on Frank Bolling's ground out. Denis Menke's second single of the game scored Maye.

Sievers' Blast Beats Mets, 2-1

Phillies Pin 16th Defeat On Craig

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Roy Sievers hit the first pitch delivered to him by Roger Craig for a two-run homer in the ninth inning — the 300th homer of his career — to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 2-1 victory over the New York Mets Friday night.

Craig, within two outs of breaking a 13-game losing streak, had a three-hitter until Tony Gonzalez got a three-base hit when his line smash to the scoreboard bounded between Met outfielders Jim Hicks and Joe Christopher. Then Sievers came on and wrecked Craig's bid for victory and handed the luckless right-hander his 16th loss of the season.

Craig, now loser of 14 games in a row and given no runs by the Mets in six of his losses, led from the fourth inning on when Christopher opened with a double, went to third on an outfield fly and scored on a wild pitch by Cal McLish, who pitched the first eight innings for the Phillies.

Even a change of uniforms failed to halt the skid of the Met right-hander, who led the National League with 24 losses last season. He discarded his usual number 38 to wear number 36, normally worn by Tracy Stallard.

British Netmen Win Over Spain

BRISTOL, England (UPI) — Britain scored a dramatic doubles victory over Spain Friday in 250 minutes of tense tennis to gain a vital 2-1 lead in the semi-final of the European Zone Davis Cup eliminations.

Bobby Wilson and Mike Sangster teamed to beat the Spanish duo of Manuel Santana and Jose Luis Arilla, 8-10, 7-5, 9-7, 4-6, 6-1.

Britain now is strongly favored to win at least one of Saturday's singles to win a berth in the zone final for only the second time since World War II. Wilson meets Arilla and was favored to win.

LEADER'S ROLE CAN BE TIRING—Dick Hart, of Hinsdale, Ill., lets with a big yawn as he sits on his golf bag waiting to tee off on the 4th tee at the DAC Country Club at Dallas, Texas. Hart, the young assistant pro at Hinsdale Golf Club, retained a 4-under par lead after 36 holes with a card of 138. (AP Photofax)

U.S.-Russian Track Meet Opens Today In Moscow

Yanks Confident; Jim Beatty Only Question Mark

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Filled with confidence, potato salad and Finnish milk, the United States track and field team opens its annual two-day meet against the Soviet Union Saturday, with an expected 100,000 in giant Lenin Stadium.

All the Americans are fit except ace distance man Jim Beatty, favored to win the 5,000, who went back on the question mark list Friday.

'I'll warm up before the race," Beatty said. "If I can run, I'll run. I came a long way for this meet." Beatty has a sore right leg muscle, which kicked up again Wednesday. He hoped rest would heal it.

However, he doesn't run until late Sunday afternoon. Saturday's program starts at 5:15 p.m. Moscow time (8:15 a.m., EST) and Sunday's card opens an hour earlier.

The American men's team was primed for its fifth straight victory and its biggest margin ever in the series. Last year at Palo Alto they won 128-107.

"They have two chances to beat us," says Gene Johnson of Santa Clara, Calif., "slim and none."

U.S. Coach Payton Jordan of Stanford is gunning for the first American edge ever in combined totals of men's and women's events, which is the way the Russians score it.

The Russians are ready, too. "We have a few surprises," said Soviet Coach Gabriel Korobkov.

The two squads gathered at the residence of American Ambassador Foy Kohler Friday afternoon at a reception. Milk imported from Finland flowed like vodka. The Americans also demolished a huge pile of American potato salad.

Coach Jordan, apparently following a pre-set plan, has systematically eliminated any possible American excuses. A positive thinker, he has praised the current warm weather, the stadium, the arrangements and his team.

"I wouldn't have picked a single athlete other than the ones we have, if I could choose from all the others back home," he said.

Streit Plays Harvey For Canadian Title

HULL, Que. (UPI) — Favored Marlene Stewart Streit and Gail Harvey, a long-hitting Toronto teenager, scored impressive victories Friday to advance to the finals of the Canadian Ladies Open golf championship.

Mrs. Streit, the tiny Fonthill, Ont., shotmaker who is playing at least as well as her all-conquering days of the 1950's, ousted Joann Riddell, 5 and 4, in one of the day's two semi-final matches.

In the other, Miss Harvey finished in a blaze of sub-par golf to eliminate Winnipeg housewife Mrs. J. M. Netterfield by a 4 and 3 count.

The victory sent the two Ontario girls into the 36-hole final starting at 9 a.m. EDT Saturday.

Pirates Get Five Runs In Eighth

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates, providing Bob Friend with batting support for the first time in three weeks, hammered out 16 hits Friday night to defeat the Chicago Cubs, 9-4.

Friend, who had not had a run scored behind him in his last three starts, doled out six hits in improving his record to 11-8. Friend tired and was removed for a pinch hitter in the eighth inning. Alvin McBean, who surrendered a run in the ninth, finished the game.

Dick Ellsworth suffered the loss, his seventh against 13 wins. Ellsworth gave up nine hits and four runs in the six innings he worked.

Until Friday night the last time the Pirates scored for Friend was June 30—29 innings ago—when he blanked the New York Mets 3-0. In the intervening three games the Pirates managed just 12 hits behind Friend.

Mary Mills Leads U.S. Open Golf

Ties Record With 70, Holds 3-Stroke Edge

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Perky Mary Mills, a long slugger from Gulf Hill, Miss., fired a record-tying 70 Friday to take a commanding three-stroke lead in the second round of the U.S. Women's Open Golf championship.

Miss Mills, a 145-pound belter, compiled a two-day 141 total to break by one stroke the 36-hole Women's Open record set by Mickey Wright of Dallas in 1960. Miss Mills also tied the course record of 70, set by Carole Mann of Atlanta in the 1960 Trans-Mississippi tournament at Kenwood Country Club.

In second place, trying for her third open win, was veteran Louise Suggs, of Delray Beach, Fla., who carded identical 72s on both rounds for her 144 total.

Five strokes back was Clifford Ann Creed of Alexandria, La., who was co-leader with Miss Mills at the end of the first round, double-bogeyed on the par four second hole Friday and finished with an even-par 71-75—146.

A field of 81 contestants was trimmed to 33 professionals and seven amateurs who survived the cut-off at 159 or under. Just missing a chance at the final rounds was former tennis champion Althea Gibson of New York, who finished with a 78-82—160.

Further back among the qualifiers but apparently out of the running were four-time Open winner Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., with a 152 total; defending champion Murle Lindstrom of Sutton, Mass., with a 158 and former Open winner Kathy Cornelius of Scottsdale, Ariz., with 156.

The 40 qualifiers tee off Saturday for the final 36 holes. If there is a tie for first place, the playoff will take place Sunday.

Chuck McKinley Goes To Finals

Nancy Richie Wins Clay Courts Test

RIVER FOREST, Ill. (AP)—Chuck McKinley, Wimbledon champion and Davis Cup star, advanced as expected Friday to the finals of the 53rd National Clay Courts Tennis Championships.

The 22 - year - old McKinley scored a convincing 6-3, 6-3, 7-5 victory over unranked Herbert Fitzgibbon II of Garden City, N. Y. McKinley's victory set up a championship match on Sunday against either R. Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif. or Ron Barnes of Brazil, who meet Saturday.

In the women's division, petite Nancy Richey of Dallas, 20, advanced with a neat 6-1, 6-2 decision over rugged Judy Alvarez of Tampa, Fla. in a semifinal match.

The other women's semifinal between Victoria Palmer, 18, of Phoenix, Ariz. and Gwyneth Thomas, 22, of Shaker Heights, Ohio, also will be played Saturday.

Miss Richey had an easy time defeating Miss Alvarez, a 20-year-old physical education major at Tampa University. Miss Alvarez had stunned the tennis world by conquering top - seeded Darlene Hard of Los Angeles in straight sets Thursday.

Floyd's Trainer Starts Hassle Over Gloves For Title Match

Florio Objects To Letting Fighters Wear Any Make

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A minor hassle involving the gloves to be used Monday night when Sonny Liston defends the heavyweight title against ex - champ Floyd Patterson flared up during Friday's meeting of the Nevada State Athletic Commission.

Dan Florio, Patterson's chief trainer, objected when he learned belatedly that the fighters would be able to wear any make of glove they wished as long as they weighed the required eight ounces.

Liston planned to use the foam rubber Frager gloves and Patterson expected to use the horse hair-packed Everlast gloves that were used in their first fight last Sept. 25 at Chicago.

"This is the first time I ever heard of fighters being allowed to use different make of gloves in a title fight," said the veteran trainer. Informed that Patterson had agreed to this in the contract, Florio said, "He probably didn't read it and thought everything was all right."

This prompted commission chairman John Gammick of Elko, Nev., to ask, "Does he sign blank checks?"

If the Chicago-made gloves add anything to a fighter's punch, Patterson could be in trouble. Using the other make Liston belted him out in two minutes and six seconds of the first round last Sept. 25.

While they were arguing about gloves, the foul rule and other moot points, Patterson was sleeping at his desert retreat six miles away from the gambling mills after doing 3½ miles on the road in early morning before the thermometer soared around the 105 mark.

Liston, who also had finished his boxing chores earlier in the week, confined himself to road work and a few loosening up exercises.

Reds Score Over Slumping Giants

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Tom Harper clouted a pair of long home runs and batted in all five runs Friday night to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-2 victory over the slumping San Francisco Giants.

The triumph moved the Reds into a tie for fourth place in the National League with the Giants, who suffered their ninth setback in 12 games.

Pierce, the loser, now is 3-7. Willie McCovey extended his hitting streak to 24 games with a single in the seventh. McCovey's streak is the longest in the major leagues this season and equals the longest in Giant history.

Game Washed Out

NEW YORK (UPI) — A sudden downpour caused postponement of Friday night's game between the Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees with the Yankees at bat in the bottom half of the first inning.

Al Downing retired the Indians in order in the top half of the first inning and play was halted with leadoff hitter Tony Kubek at bat in the bottom of the frame. Plate umpire John Stevens called the game after a one-hour delay.

Orioles Lose To A's, 2-1

Harrelson's SF Snaps Tie In 5th

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Ken Harrelson's fifth inning sacrifice fly Friday night broke a 1-1 deadlock and gave the Kansas City Athletics a 2-1 decision over the Baltimore Orioles.

Pitcher Orlando Pena recorded his sixth victory of the year and scored the winning run on Harrelson's long sacrifice fly to center field. Pena led off the fifth with a walk, advancing to third on Gino Cimoli's single and John Powell's error.

Pena nedeed support from John Wyatt in the ninth inning. It was Wyatt's 12th save. Baltimore had two runners on base with one out when Wyatt came in to get John Orsino to pop up and strike out Jackie Brandt.

Kansas City had only four hits, but one of them was Doc Edward's third home run of the season in the third inning, which tied the score.

Starter Dave McNally was lifted in the seventh inning and was replaced by Steve Barber. McNally suffered his fourth loss in seven decisions.

Dick Hart Continues To Lead PGA Tourney With 4-Under-Par 138

Mayfield, Lema, Boros Trail By Three Strokes

Three Quit Because Of Heat; Nicklaus Has 142, Palmer 147

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

DALLAS (UPI) — Jut-jawed Dick Hart, the young guy from nowhere, refused to wilt to Texas heat, rigid par or big time pressure Friday as he fired a one over par 37-35—72 to cling tenaciously to the second round lead in the PGA golf championship with a four under par 138.

The slender 27-year-old from Hinsdale, Ill., a mere assistant pro, grabbed the lead in the first round with a five under par 66. But, while all the big horses were running at him in 100 degree heat and nobody expected him to withstand the assault, he calmly clung to the head end while some of golf's greatest names were dropping.

Three tour players, former U.S. Open champion Jack Fleck, Jim Ferree and Don Fairfield all had to withdraw because of the heat; Arnold Palmer shot a disgusted 73 which left him far back at 147; Jack Nicklaus also shot a 73 for 142, and the closest challengers to the unknown Hart were three of the big ones—U.S. Open champion Julius Boros, Champagne Tony Lema and Texan Shelley Mayfield.

Those three were stacked at 141, one stroke under par and three behind Hart, when Lema shot an even par 71 over the blistered Dac Course while Boros and Mayfield each posted a 72.

Behind them at even par 142 came Nicklaus, former champion Doug Ford with a 72 and Manuel De La Torre of Milwaukee with a 71.

Doug Sanders of the telephone booth backswing shot a 69 to jump into the 143 bracket along with former U.S. Open champion Gene Littler, Aussie Bruce Crampton and Phoenix Bill Johnston. At 144, were three-time champion Sam Snead with a 73, Mason Rudolph with a 75, Dow Finsterwald with a 72, Billy Maxwell with a 71 and Bob Goalby and Dan Sikes with 70's.

Former hockey star Bill Ezinicki and British Open champion Bob Charles moved into the 145 group with Dave Ragan and Dave Hill while at 146 were Billy Farrell, Tommy Jacobs, Paul Harney, Gardner Dickinson, Jim Ferrier and Dutch Harrison.

Palmer's 73—in what he called "my most disappointing year in golf" as it looked like he might not win one of the major events despite a new money winning record — put him at 147 along with former champion Jackie Burke and Frank Stranahan.

The Big Men

The two biggest men in the field, mountainous George Bayer with a 73 and six-foot-five John Barnum with a 74, were banked at 148 while at 149 came defending champion Gary Player with a 79 and Art Wall with a 76.

All the old-timers thought that the virtually inexperienced young man from Salem, Mass., would wilt under either the heat or the pressure. But Hart played it with real heart.

It was hot on the course and hotter in the hollows but it didn't bother a gallery of 8,500 which plodded the course as if it was the middle of Indian Summer and the Red Cross tent reported that not one single case of heat exhaustion was treated.

Cardinals Trim Houston, 7-2

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals two - man offensive act — Dick Groat and Bill White—led an 11-hit assault on the lowly Houston Colts for a 7-2 victory here Friday night.

The Cards clubbed four Houston pitchers for a homer, two triples and a double to back up shut-out four-hit relief hurling by fast-baller Ron Taylor, who notched his fifth victory in nine decisions.

Taylor entered the game in the third after the Colts had nickle-and-dimed Ernie Broglio to the showers. Houston starter Dick Drott absorbed his eighth loss against two wins.

White was two for four against Houston, including his 16th homer to right center field in the first inning. He singled and scored in the fifth. Groat was three for four, including a double, an RBI and a run scored. The two participated in all but two Cardinal tallies.

Ken Boyer had a two RBI single in the fifth and Julian Javier and Gary Kolb each had triples.

Drysdale Fans 11 As Dodgers Top Braves, 4-2

Howard Wallops Pair Of Homers

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Big Don Drysdale struck out 11 while giving up six hits and burly Frank Howard slammed a pair of home runs to lead the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-2 victory over the Milwaukee Braves Friday night.

The win enabled the Dodgers to take a 7½ game lead in the National League over the second place Chicago Cubs, who were defeated by the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9-4.

Righthander Drysdale scored his 12th victory of the year in going the distance for the 11th time in 25 starts. Lefthander Bob Hendley, who was relieved for a pinch batter in the sixth, was charged with his sixth loss against five wins.

Howard needed just two pitches thrown to him to post his 14th and 15th home runs of the season, six of them against the Braves. Howard led off the second and hit Henley's first pitch over the left field wall. With two out in the fourth he again hit the first pitch, and this time the ball traveled over the left-center-field wall.

Ken McMullen's seventh inning single scored Los Angeles' two other runs. With one out, Howard had gotten on first on an error by Eddie Mathews, which ended the Milwaukee third baseman's errorless streak at 28 games. Bill Skowron's double sent Howard to third and McMullen then scored them.

Hank Aaron tagged Drysdale for his 27th home run of the year when he led off the two-run seventh for the Braves. Lee Maye then drew the only walk off Drysdale and went to second on Frank Bolling's ground out. Denis Menke's second single of the game scored Maye.

Sievers' Blast Beats Mets, 2-1

Phillies Pin 16th Defeat On Craig

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Roy Sievers hit the first pitch delivered to him by Roger Craig for a two-run homer in the ninth inning — the 300th homer of his career — to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 2-1 victory over the New York Mets Friday night.

Craig, within two outs of breaking a 13-game losing streak, had a three-hitter until Tony Gonzalez got a three-base hit when his line smash to the scoreboard bounded between Met outfielders Jim Hicks and Joe Christopher. Then Sievers came on and wrecked Craig's bid for victory and handed the luckless right-hander his 16th loss of the season.

Craig, now loser of 14 games in a row and given no runs by the Mets in six of his losses, led from the fourth inning on when Christopher opened with a double, went to third on an outfield fly and scored on a wild pitch by Cal McLish, who pitched the first eight innings for the Phillies.

Even a change of uniforms failed to halt the skid of the Met right-hander, who led the National League with 24 losses last season. He discarded his usual number 38 to wear number 36, normally worn by Tracy Stallard.

British Netmen Win Over Spain

BRISTOL, England (UPI) — Britain scored a dramatic doubles victory over Spain Friday in 250 minutes of tense tennis to gain a vital 2-1 lead in the semi-final of the European Zone Davis Cup eliminations.

Bobby Wilson and Mike Sangster teamed to beat the Spanish duo of Manuel Santana and Jose Luis Arilla, 8-10, 7-5, 9-7, 4-6, 6-1.

Britain now is strongly favored to win at least one of Saturday's singles to win a berth in the zone final for only the second time since World War II. Wilson meets Arilla and was favored to win.

U.S.-Russian Track Meet Opens Today In Moscow

Yanks Confident; Jim Beatty Only Question Mark

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Filled with confidence, potato salad and Finnish milk, the United States track and field team opens its annual two-day meet against the Soviet Union Saturday, with an expected 100,000 in giant Lenin Stadium.

All the Americans are fit except ace distance man Jim Beatty, favored to win the 5,000, who went back on the question mark list Friday.

'I'll warm up before the race," Beatty said. "If I can run, I'll run. I came a long way for this meet." Beatty has a sore right leg muscle, which kicked up again Wednesday. He hoped rest would heal it.

However, he doesn't run until late Sunday afternoon. Saturday's program starts at 5:15 p.m. Moscow time (8:15 a.m., EST) and Sunday's card opens an hour earlier.

The American men's team was primed for its fifth straight victory and its biggest margin ever in the series. Last year at Palo Alto they won 128-107.

"They have two chances to beat us," says Gene Johnson of Santa Clara, Calif., "slim and none."

Yankee girls are aiming for their best showing, although they have never even approached the Russian girls in the four previous meets.

U.S. Coach Payton Jordan of Stanford is gunning for the first American edge ever in combined totals of men's and women's events, which is the way the Russians score it.

The Russians are ready, too. "We have a few surprises," said Soviet Coach Gabriel Korobkov.

The two squads gathered at the residence of American Ambassador Foy Kohler Friday afternoon at a reception. Milk imported from Finland flowed like vodka. The Americans also demolished a huge pile of American potato salad.

Later, the members of the two teams gathered on the lawn of the home, built Greek style by a Russian merchant who held the salt monopoly under the Czar, and posed for pictures.

Three bulky Russians in sack suits lounged against a wall watching the proceedings.

Coach Jordan, apparently following a pre-set plan, has systematically eliminated any possible American excuses. A positive thinker, he has praised the current warm weather, the stadium, the arrangements and his team.

"I wouldn't have picked a single athlete other than the ones we have, if I could choose from all the others back home," he said.

Streit Plays Harvey For Canadian Title

HULL, Que. (UPI) — Favored Marlene Stewart Streit and Gail Harvey, a long-hitting Toronto teenager, scored impressive victories Friday to advance to the finals of the Canadian Ladies Open golf championship.

Mrs. Streit, the tiny Fonthill, Ont., shotmaker who is playing at least as well as her all-conquering days of the 1950's, ousted Joann Riddell, 5 and 4, in one of the day's two semi-final matches.

In the other, Miss Harvey finished in a blaze of sub-par golf to eliminate Winnipeg housewife Mrs. J. M. Netterfield by a 4 and 3 count.

The victory sent the two Ontario girls into the 36-hole final starting at 9 a.m. EDT Saturday.

Pirates Get Five Runs In Eighth

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates, providing Bob Friend with batting support for the first time in three weeks, hammered out 16 hits Friday night to defeat the Chicago Cubs, 9-4.

Friend, who had not had a run scored behind him in his last three starts, doled out six hits in improving his record to 11-8. Friend tired and was removed for a pinch hitter in the eighth inning. Alvin McBean, who surrendered a run in the ninth, finished the game.

The Pirates wrapped the game up in the eighth when they scored five times on seven singles and a sacrifice fly.

Dick Ellsworth suffered the loss, his seventh against 13 wins. Ellsworth gave up nine hits and four runs in the six innings he worked.

The Cubs scored first, getting three runs in the third inning on Billy Williams' bases loaded triple.

The Pirates rang up four consecutive hits in their half of the inning for two runs. The key blows were singles by Friend and Dick Schofield.

Until Friday night the last time the Pirates scored for Friend was June 30—29 innings ago—when he blanked the New York Mets 3-0. In the intervening three games the Pirates managed just 12 hits behind Friend.

Mary Mills Leads U.S. Open Golf

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Perky Mary Mills, a long slugger from Gulf Hill, Miss., fired a record-tying 70 Friday to take a commanding three-stroke lead in the second round of the U.S. Women's Open Golf championship.

Miss Mills, a 145-pound belter, compiled a two-day 141 total to break by one stroke the 36-hole Women's Open record set by Mickey Wright of Dallas in 1960. Miss Mills also tied the course record of 70, set by Carole Mann of Atlanta in the 1960 Trans-Mississippi tournament at Kenwood Country Club.

Shooting almost flawless golf in the second round of 18 holes, the 23-year-old Miss Mills led the field of 40 qualifiers going into Saturday's gruelling 36 holes.

In second place, trying for her third open win, was veteran Louise Suggs, of Delray Beach, Fla., who carded identical 72s on both rounds for her 144 total.

Five strokes back was Clifford Ann Creed of Alexandria, La., who was co-leader with Miss Mills at the end of the first round, double-bogeyed on the par four second hole Friday and finished with an even-par 71-75—146.

A field of 81 contestants was trimmed to 33 professionals and seven amateurs who survived the cut-off at 159 or under. Just missing a chance at the final rounds was former tennis champion Althea Gibson of New York, who finished with a 78-82—160.

Further back among the qualifiers but apparently out of the running were four-time Open winner Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., with a 152 total; defending champion Murle Lindstrom of Sutton, Mass., with a 158 and former Open winner Kathy Cornelius of Scottsdale, Ariz., with 156.

The 40 qualifiers tee off Saturday for the final 36 holes. If there is a tie for first place, the playoff will take place Sunday.

Chuck McKinley Goes To Finals

Nancy Richie Wins Clay Courts Test

RIVER FOREST, Ill. (AP)—Chuck McKinley, Wimbledon champion and Davis Cup star, advanced as expected Friday to the finals of the 53rd National Clay Courts Tennis Championships.

The 22 - year - old McKinley scored a convincing 6-3, 6-3, 7-5 victory over unranked Herbert Fitzgibbon II of Garden City, N. Y. McKinley's victory set up a championship match on Sunday against either R. Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif. or Ron Barnes of Brazil, who meet Saturday.

In the women's division, petite Nancy Richey of Dallas, 20, advanced with a neat 6-1, 6-2 decision over rugged Judy Alvarez of Tampa, Fla. in a semifinal match.

The other women's semifinal between Victoria Palmer, 18, of Phoenix, Ariz. and Gwyneth Thomas, 22, of Shaker Heights, Ohio, also will be played Saturday.

Miss Richey had an easy time defeating Miss Alvarez, a 20-year-old physical education major at Tampa University. Miss Alvarez had stunned the tennis world by conquering top - seeded Darlene Hard of Los Angeles in straight sets Thursday.

Floyd's Trainer Starts Hassle Over Gloves For Title Match

Florio Objects To Letting Fighters Wear Any Make

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A minor hassle involving the gloves to be used Monday night when Sonny Liston defends the heavyweight title against ex - champ Floyd Patterson flared up during Friday's meeting of the Nevada State Athletic Commission.

Dan Florio, Patterson's chief trainer, objected when he learned belatedly that the fighters would be able to wear any make of glove they wished as long as they weighed the required eight ounces.

Liston planned to use the foam rubber Frager gloves and Patterson expected to use the horse hair-packed Everlast gloves that were used in their first fight last Sept. 25 at Chicago.

"This is the first time I ever heard of fighters being allowed to use different make of gloves in a title fight," said the veteran trainer. Informed that Patterson had agreed to this in the contract, Florio said, "He probably didn't read it and thought everything was all right."

This prompted commission chairman John Gammick of Elko, Nev., to ask, "Does he sign blank checks?"

The net outcome was that Florio said, "We'll use the Frager gloves, too."

"I don't care if they wear golf gloves," said Jack Nilon, manager of Liston, the 4-1 favorite.

If the Chicago-made gloves add anything to a fighter's punch, Patterson could be in trouble. Using the other make Liston belted him out in two minutes and six seconds of the first round last Sept. 25.

While they were arguing about gloves, the foul rule and other moot points, Patterson was sleeping at his desert retreat six miles away from the gambling mills after doing 3½ miles on the road in early morning before the thermometor soared around the 105 mark.

Liston, who also had finished his boxing chores earlier in the week, confined himself to road work and a few loosening up exercises.

Reds Score Over Slumping Giants

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Tom Harper clouted a pair of long home runs and batted in all five runs Friday night to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-2 victory over the slumping San Francisco Giants.

The triumph moved the Reds into a tie for fourth place in the National League with the Giants, who suffered their ninth setback in 12 games.

Pierce, the loser, now is 3-7. Willie McCovey extended his hitting streak to 24 games with a single in the seventh. McCovey's streak is the longest in the major leagues this season and equals the longest in Giant history.

County Zoning Proposal Is Being Studied

Will Replace Interim Ordinance

The first draft of a 68-page comprehensive zoning ordinance for Allegany County was studied last night during a meeting of the County Planning and Zoning Commission at the Court House.

Present at the meeting was Julian A. Tarrant of Richmond, Va., planning consultant, who compiled the rough draft which will be studied thoroughly by commission members who will discuss it further at future meetings.

The commission members last night went through the draft page by page and discussed various phases of the proposed ordinance including legal formality, setback regulations, defunct businesses, disposal of refuse and lot size for new homes.

James Perrin, chairman of the commission, suggested that definitions in the proposed ordinance be studied by members, who are to make any changes they deem necessary and air them at the next meeting.

To Expire Soon

At the present time an interim zoning ordinance is in effect, having been adopted October 20, 1961. It will expire next April 20.

After the rough draft is studied thoroughly and changes made, the commission is expected to publicize the proposed ordinance.

A public hearing on the ordinance is required by law. Interested residents will be given a chance at the hearing to make suggestions or rejections of the ordinance.

After the commission completes its study, the proposed ordinance will be presented to the County Board of Commissioners for study.

Again a public hearing will be held prior to adoption by the Board of Commissioners.

Numbering Plan Cited

C. Lee Renaud, county planning director, gave a review of the draft of a nine-page house numbering plan compiled by the Planning and Zoning Commission in cooperation with the Maryland State Planning Department.

Included in the plan, as outlined by Renaud, are the need for adopting a uniform address system; existing number system in the county; general principals of the house numbering plan and recommendations and administration.

The commission will hold a second public hearing at the Court House at 2 p.m. Tuesday on its proposed subdivision regulations before making final recommendations to the Board of County Commissioners.

Policemen Begin Pistol Training

Health Board Orders Razing Of Dwellings

Asks Housing Unit To Speed Projects

The recently reactivated City Health Board yesterday afternoon instructed its staffers to proceed with plans for the razing of three buildings here.

The action followed reports presented by inspectors on the condition of the buildings. Owners will be notified the dwellings are beyond repair and must be razed within a reasonable time.

Mayor Earl D. Chaney, chairman of the board, said the city plans to enforce the law on substandard dwellings.

To find quarters for persons displaced by the demolition, the City Health Board this week will urge the Cumberland Housing Authority to speed its plans for providing low - rent public housing facilities.

The authority has received permission to provide 200 more dwelling units here, half of them for the elderly.

The board's investigating team, George Scarlett, building inspector; Gaylord Brooks, senior sanitarian for the Health Department, and Fire Inspector Edward Trost made plans to meet on second and fourth Tuesdays joint inspections following the filing of housing complaints.

Results of these inspections will be presented to the board at meetings scheduled on third Fridays at 2 p. m.

Copies of the city's Hygiene of Housing ordinance are available through the board and are being distributed to realtors and interested persons.

Fire Chief Virgil Parker said wiring in the Maryland Hotel, bad for some time, has been put in satisfactory condition.

Hot Spell Forecast To Remain

Mercury To Top 90 Mark Today

The mercury is expected to top the 90-degree mark today for the fifth straight day this week and the 20th time this year.

The forecast for today calls for partly cloudy, hot and humid weather with a chance of scattered thunderstorms. The high is expected to be 90-95 degrees.

If the mercury hits 90 today it will mark the 20th time this year it has done so. The first time occurred April 19.

The unofficial high in downtown Cumberland yesterday was 95 degrees. The high for the week was on Wednesday when the mercury hit 96.

Some Women Must Re-sign Voting Rolls

Some 43 women of Allegany County whose names have been changed by marriage during the first six months of this year will receive notices next week that they are to re-register at the office of the County Board of Election Supervisors at the Court House.

John R. Kelly, chief clerk and Democrat registrar, said yesterday the re-registration procedure is in compliance with Section 43-G of Article 33 of the Annotated Code of Maryland.

Those who receive the notices are being reminded they are required to show cause within two weeks after the date of mailing of the notification why their registration should not be cancelled.

Mr. Kelly said if those who receive a notice fail to show cause within the time prescribed, their name will be stricken from the election rolls and they will not be eligible to vote at any future election without re-registering.

The notices are to be mailed out Monday, according to Mr. Kelly, who reminds other married women who have failed in the past to re-register under their married name, to report to the office and do so as soon as possible.

Twice a year the Clerk of the Court furnishes the Board of Election Supervisors with the names of Allegany County women who are married during the six-month periods.

Drought Affects Water Level In Blue Spring

The water level in Cumberland's famous Blue Spring has been dropping to alarming levels and city staffers are keeping a daily watch to protect the big trout which make their home there.

The spring, located in the 400 block of North Mechanic Street, was down last week but rose two feet Monday as a result of Sunday's heavy rains.

But the level of the water has dropped 5½ feet since Monday and two of the big fish were found dead late this week, apparently as a result of the lowered water level.

The spring is fed from an underground stream which drains a big field in Pennsylvania near the state line, and for many years maintained a satisfactory level for the fish in the Blue Spring.

Bids On Repairs At Dam Are Due

Bids on repairs and restoration work on Lake Gordon and Lake Koon will be opened by the Mayor and City Council Monday at 10 a. m.

A great deal of work on the dams will include the restoration of the weathered surface, which will be built up to the original contour.

A gun operated by compressed air is used to apply the "shotcrete" cement mixture. Water is added to the dry materials — usually a mixture of one part cement to 3½ parts of sand — as the dry materials pass through the nozzle of the gun.

Lake Gordon was built in 1911 and Lake Koon in 1932 and both have suffered the usual damage from freezing and thawing.

Jim (Big John) Dean Gets Hour Show

By RUTH B. THOMPSON

His opening day as guest-host of the ABC-TV "Tennessee Ernie Ford Show" (Noontime July 22, and he'll stay on the job through the following Monday, July 29) finds handsome Jimmy Dean living up to a song cue by sitting on top of the world. And in real life, if ever a young man was, he is.

Still on the sunny side of 35, Jimmy's currently reaping royalties from the three million sales of what is considered the all-time big selling recording (his own composition, "Big John"); has made himself an enviable eight-year track record at emceeing as well as singing; and is now at the topmost step of all—a new, hour-long nighttime variety show wearing his name. It bows on ABC September 19.

The six-foot-three Dean has the chisled cheekbones and arresting good looks that might tempt a director to cast him as a heavy But aside from two turns (stage But asidef rom two turns (stage versions of "Destry Rides Again" and "No Time for Sergeants"), he's not much interested—further he simply doesn't have the time for acting. And as for playing the heavy, well it would be against his basic nature I found as we got into talking about the upcoming fall program.

"Before I tell you what we're hoping to have, let me tell you what we don't want. We don't want anybody with a star complex!" (Seems fair enough since the star himself doesn't have one). "We want nice people who can work together in harmony."

Proving the point, as it were, is the selection of Karen Morrow as Number One girl on the show. They don't come any nicer. Blonde Karen polished her natural talents by cross country tours in musical comedy, guest appearances on major TV shows, and just this season dazzled New York critics with her performance in "The Boys from Syracuse." Star . . . she is, but complex about it, she isn't.

WARMS UP — Jimmy Dean (right) is warming up for his own forthcoming nighttime variety series this fall by subbing for Hawaii-bound Tennessee Ernie Ford while the chief pea-picker vacations from his daily noontime ABC-TV show July 22-29.

Who'll some of the early guests be? Jimmy who was juggling the ever present coffee container and going over plans for the necessary new and larger offices said, "Well, you can be sure Ernie Ford is going to be invited. He's sure a good ole boy. You know I felt I'd known him for years before we actually met on a Dinah Shore show."

Nowadays Jimmy, his wife, Sue, and their three children, Garry, 11, Connie, eight and Robert, three live in Tenafly, New Jersey, which is becoming a sort of "Beverly Hills of the East." Among the neighbors are Tony Bennett, Jerry Vale and Paul Anka.

Now a thoroughly seasoned, magnetic performer, Jimmy is as hard-working as he is easy going. And in addition to his own talents, another powerful force is at work to make a success of "The Jimmy Dean Show." It's Bob Banner as executive producer. Like Midas, everything Banner touches (the early hour-long Dinah Shore Show, The Garry Moore Show) turns to gold.

Joseph Cotten To Narrate New Fall Hollywood Series

Joseph Cotten, who has just completed 222 performances on Broadway in "Calculated Risk," has been signed by Wolper Productions to narrate the series of half-hour specials on filmland, "Hollywood and the Stars," which premieres over NBC-TV on Monday, September 30.

Cotten's career in motion pictures, on Broadway and in television has been highly colorful. He has starred in 30 motion pictures since his film debut in "Citizen Kane." His biggest Broadway hits include "The Philadelphia Story," "The Postman Always Rings Twice," and "Sabrina Fair."

Cotten has participated in the kick-off of four previous series — the General Electric program, the Alfred Hitchcock series, "Bus Stop" and "Wagon Train." His biggest narration assignment for TV was on the two-hour Diamond Jubilee of Lights, an all-networks program.

Contestants Being Sought For '100 Grand'

The type contestant the network is seeking for "100 Grand" is the "amateur expert in a particular field of knowledge or activity." They are seeking experts in any subject but it must be a field other than the contestants' regular line of work or profession.

The network asks that those who wish to apply send a detailed letter to Box 467, New York 36, New York.

Jim (Big John) Dean Gets Hour Show

By RUTH B. THOMPSON

His opening day as guest-host of the ABC-TV "Tennessee Ernie Ford Show" (Noontime July 22, and he'll stay on the job through the following Monday, July 29) finds handsome Jimmy Dean living up to a song cue by sitting on top of the world. And in real life, if ever a young man was, he is.

Still on the sunny side of 35, Jimmy's currently reaping royalties from the three million sales of what is considered the all-time big selling recording (his own composition, "Big John"); has made himself an enviable eight-year track record at emceeing as well as singing; and is now at the topmost step of all—a new, hour-long nighttime variety show wearing his name. It bows on ABC September 19.

The six-foot-three Dean has the chisled cheekbones and arresting good looks that might tempt a director to cast him as a heavy But aside from two turns (stage But asidef rom two turns (stage versions of "Destry Rides Again" and "No Time for Sergeants"), he's not much interested—further he simply doesn't have the time for acting. And as for playing the heavy, well it would be against his basic nature I found as we got into talking about the upcoming fall program.

"Before I tell you what we're hoping to have, let me tell you what we don't want. We don't want anybody with a star complex!" (Seems fair enough since the star himself doesn't have one). "We want nice people who can work together in harmony."

Proving the point, as it were, is the selection of Karen Morrow as Number One girl on the show. They don't come any nicer. Blonde Karen polished her natural talents by cross country tours in musical comedy, guest appearances on major TV shows, and just this season dazzled New York critics with her performance in "The Boys from Syracuse." Star . . . she is, but complex about it, she isn't.

College Credit Courses To Be Carried In Fall

The widely hailed college credit courses on CBS-TV will be back commencing September 23.

Interestingly they're still being titled "Sunrise Semester," though many stations around the country will be scheduling the telecasts at midday or even later . . . since local stations have the option of carrying the program live or taping it for broadcast at a time of each station's choosing.

Says the network spokesman, "Each of the courses carries three degree credits administered by New York University's Washington Square College of Arts and Sciences. Qualified applicants may take any or all of the courses for full credit either through NYU or a college in their own locality which has established a credit system for 'Sunrise Semester'."

Subjects being offered are "Introduction to Ethics," taught by Dr. Sidney Hook; "Outline of the History of Art: Prehistoric Times to Early Renaissance" and "Outlines of the History of Art: Renaissance to the Present," taught by Dr. Jane Costello; and "The Legacy of Greece and Rome," taught by Dr. Lionel Casson.

For those wishing to take the courses for credit, the cost is $135 for each course. Non-credit viewers can, for a $5 fee per course, receive a study-guide to help them follow the lectures.

To Guest On Benny Show

Star maker Ed Sullivan is going to be a guest himself this fall, on the "Jack Benny Program," where he'll play a lawyer defending a French girl accused of murdering her husband, in a comedy sketch.

It was Sullivan, incidentally, CBS reminds, who first introduced Jack on radio back in 1932.

Cameras Don't Bother Audience Warmer-Upper

Seen on screen on "Play Your Hunch" he's got another show job where he never makes the home scene at all. It's "To Tell the Truth" and Johnny's job is one at which he's an expert, it's "warming up the studio audience." He used to do a similar stint for Jackie Gleason.

Swimming Around The Channels

Hollywood, which takes such things seriously, has a new Honorary Mayor, Steve Allen, who takes over from retiring "Mayor," Charlton Heston. Predecessors in the office are Lawrence Welk and Art Linkletter.

It's becoming a trend! That's the once unheard custom of doing the repeat of a major show on a different network from the one on which it was originally presented. Newest such is "The Bing Crosby Show," originally presented "on another network" in May of 1962. The re-run will be on August 14 on NBC.

And speaking of Crosby, did everybody see the charming pictures of the Mrs. Kathy Grant, in her for-real nurse's cap at recent Los Angeles graduation exercises. It's said she's been reporting for work at the hospital for years at 6 a. m. to earn the credits. Highly unusual attainment for a mother of young children!

Mitch Miller can borrow George M. Cohan's "Yankee Doodle Dandy" song anytime he wants to because—like the famed song and dance man of an earlier era—the bearded one was born on the Fourth of July.

Donna Douglas (Elly May of the Beverly Hillbillies) got along just fine on her recent trip to Japan, tumultuous welcomes in fact. Seems she digs Far East philosophy, practices Yoga and is a vegetarian.

Pseudo-Presidents Rival Kennedys In Numbers

Pretty soon there will be as many pseudo-Presidents around as there are Kennedys, observes a columnist. Now it's Cliff Robertson who's getting the treatment thanks to his portrayal of the President as a young lieutenant in "PT 109."

Working on a recent "Eleventh Hour" episode he practiced hard at turning a deaf ear "when some joker would approach me with 'Now, Jack, about that Medicare bill of yours' . . .!"

He's apparently had it as Kennedy though . . . and isn't planning to run against Vaughn Meader either. No albums pending for Robertson.

College Credit Courses To Be Carried In Fall

The widely hailed college credit courses on CBS-TV will be back commencing September 23.

Interestingly they're still being titled "Sunrise Semester," though many stations around the country will be scheduling the telecasts at midday or even later . . . since local stations have the option of carrying the program live or taping it for broadcast at a time of each station's choosing.

Says the network spokesman, "Each of the courses carries three degree credits administered by New York University's Washington Square College of Arts and Sciences. Qualified applicants may take any or all of the courses for full credit either through NYU or a college in their own locality which has established a credit system for 'Sunrise Semester'."

Subjects being offered are "Introduction to Ethics," taught by Dr. Sidney Hook; "Outline of the History of Art: Prehistoric Times to Early Renaissance" and "Outlines of the History of Art: Renaissance to the Present," taught by Dr. Jane Costello; and "The Legacy of Greece and Rome," taught by Dr. Lionel Casson.

For those wishing to take the courses for credit, the cost is $135 for each course. Non-credit viewers can, for a $5 fee per course, receive a study-guide to help them follow the lectures.

Dennis Weaver Signed For Pilot

Dennis "Chester" Weaver, long of "Gunsmoke," has been signed for a pilot film of "Kentucky's Kid" which if all goes well and sponsors sign up could grow into an NBC series.

The series had originally been planned as a vehicle for the late Jack Carson, who died at the turn of the year of cancer.

"The Kid" of the title will be played by Rickey Der. His role is that of Dwight Eisenhower Wong, a young Chinese boy who "becomes by adoption, the No. 1 son of Kentucky a recent widower."

Foreign Correspondent Fills Modern Role

"No trench coat, no I don't own one," says ABC foreign correspondent Stanley Rich, on stateside leave from his post in Hong Kong. "The uniform," he says, "is a conservative business suit."

He explodes the legend too, of the foreign correspondent as a fast-traveling loner. With Rich are his wife, their three children, and the children's "amah" (nurse).

Swimming Around The Channels

Hollywood, which takes such things seriously, has a new Honorary Mayor, Steve Allen, who takes over from retiring "Mayor," Charlton Heston. Predecessors in the office are Lawrence Welk and Art Linkletter.

It's becoming a trend! That's the once unheard custom of doing the repeat of a major show on a different network from the one on which it was originally presented. Newest such is "The Bing Crosby Show," originally presented "on another network" in May of 1962. The re-run will be on August 14 on NBC.

And speaking of Crosby, did everybody see the charming pictures of the Mrs. Kathy Grant, in her for-real nurse's cap at recent Los Angeles graduation exercises. It's said she's been reporting for work at the hospital for years at 6 a. m. to earn the credits. Highly unusual attainment for a mother of young children!

Mitch Miller can borrow George M. Cohan's "Yankee Doodle Dandy" song anytime he wants to because—like the famed song and dance man of an earlier era—the bearded one was born on the Fourth of July.

Donna Douglas (Elly May of the Beverly Hillbillies) got along just fine on her recent trip to Japan, tumultuous welcomes in fact. Seems she digs Far East philosophy, practices Yoga and is a vegetarian.

That wild blue yonder look of "The Virginian" causes nary a tremor for scenery designers because it's the real thing, all exterior scenes being color filmed in Wyoming's Jackson Hole Country.

BOMB DROPPER—Britisher Peter Cook (above), who has made numerous American TV appearances, was once a guest panelist on "What's My Line?" and toyed with the idea of dropping this bomb: "I would have liked to have questioned the mystery guest as follows: 'Are you so-and-so, the person they told me would be on'?" Unfortunately, he was chicken.

"Sing Along With Mitch's" Victor Griffin has given considerable thought to a song title. Says, "The Moon Belongs to Everyone, The Best Things In Life Are Free," will have to be rewritten because, "The moon is going to cost billions"

Pseudo-Presidents Rival Kennedys In Numbers

Pretty soon there will be as many pseudo-Presidents around as there are Kennedys, observes a columnist. Now it's Cliff Robertson who's getting the treatment thanks to his portrayal of the President as a young lieutenant in "PT 109."

Working on a recent "Eleventh Hour" episode he practiced hard at turning a deaf ear "when some joker would approach me with 'Now, Jack, about that Medicare bill of yours' . . .!"

He's apparently had it as Kennedy though . . . and isn't planning to run against Vaughn Meader either. No albums pending for Robertson.

Dennis Weaver Signed For Pilot

Dennis "Chester" Weaver, long of "Gunsmoke," has been signed for a pilot film of "Kentucky's Kid" which if all goes well and sponsors sign up could grow into an NBC series.

The series had originally been planned as a vehicle for the late Jack Carson, who died at the turn of the year of cancer.

"The Kid" of the title will be played by Rickey Der. His role is that of Dwight Eisenhower Wong, a young Chinese boy who "becomes by adoption, the No. 1 son of Kentucky a recent widower."

Foreign Correspondent Fills Modern Role

"No trench coat, no I don't own one," says ABC foreign correspondent Stanley Rich, on stateside leave from his post in Hong Kong. "The uniform," he says, "is a conservative business suit."

He explodes the legend too, of the foreign correspondent as a fast-traveling loner. With Rich are his wife, their three children, and the children's "amah" (nurse).
